How to Sell on Amazon FBA: A Step by Step Guide

How to sell on Amazon FBA – The Basics

If this is the first time you've discovered Amazon FBA, don't worry. We want to make sure you understand how it all works. This part of the article will cover the basics of How to Sell on Amazon FBA.

Amazon FBA literally means Amazon Fulfilled-by-Amazon. In the Amazon FBA program, Amazon does all the hard work for you.

Here's how it works:

- 1 First, you send Amazon your products and they store it in one or more of their million acre fulfillment centers. The fulfillment centers are like massive warehouses run by robots and hardworking Amazon employees.
- 2 Then, your products are inventoried and sorted. They are taken good care of. And if on the off-chance something is damaged in one of Amazon's warehouses, Amazon will actually reimburse you the full retail price for the damaged good!

- 3 When a customer places an order on Amazon for your product, Amazon handles the transaction for you. The entire process is automated.
- 4 Next, your product is picked from its place on the shelves, packed into a box, and shipped to the customer on your behalf.
- 5 After your product arrives to the customer, Amazon follows up with the customer to make sure everything is okay with the order. And, if any need to be made, Amazon automatically takes care of that, too.

If Amazon does all the work, what do I do?

Now you're probably thinking, "Okay, Greg. That all sounds great! But what do I actually do?"

As an Amazon FBA seller you will have to:

- 1 Pick the products. Amazon handles all the back end work, but you need to decide what to actually sell. I'll tell you about a few different methods of selling products on Amazon in a moment.
- 2 Keep inventory in stock. Amazon will let you know when inventory is running low. But it's your job to make sure that the things you sell stay stocked up.
- 3 Promote and advertise. Amazon is a massive catalog of millions of products. Therefore, you'll need to do a little work to make sure people find your products. But don't worry—it's pretty easy!

What does it cost to sell on Amazon FBA?

Selling on Amazon FBA is very reasonable to get started with. In fact, if you're selling products that you already own (like unwanted items around the house), you can virtually do it for free!

Individual and professional seller accounts

There are two types of Amazon FBA seller accounts: individual and professional. Individual seller accounts are free, but have higher sales fees. And professional accounts have a monthly subscription fee of $39.95, but lower fees. We recommend you get a professional account if you plan on selling more than 40 items per month. But if you want to start slow with only a few items, then individual may be better for you.

Amazon fees

Like many online marketplaces, Amazon takes out fees for their services, usually after a sale has been made. Here's the quick version of those fees:

- Amazon takes a 15% referral fee on all sales for most categories.
- If you use Amazon's FBA service, they take out fees to cover the shipping and handling costs for your products. However, these tend to be less than what it would cost to ship it yourself.
- Some categories, like books and DVDs, have an additional flat fee.

- If you sell on an individual seller plan (no subscription fee), Amazon charges an additional $1.00 flat fee. Hence why we recommend going professional if you're going to sell 40 or more products per month.
- Keeping your inventory at Amazon fulfillment centers too long can result in long term storage fees.

If this sounds like a lot, don't worry! The fees overall are pretty low and actually end up costing you a lot less were you to do all the work yourself.

Inventory costs

Depending on the type products you choose to sell on Amazon, your inventory costs will vary. We recommend the private label method which does come with a moderate investment upfront, but you might choose to start with just a few things around the house to get a feel for how to sell on Amazon FBA. It's totally up to you!

Which is better to sell on: Amazon or Ebay?

This is a question that's as old as e-commerce itself. And ultimately, it depends on you and what you want out of your business. Some people swear by Ebay. While others, like myself, think Amazon is the best place to start an online business. I think the best way to sum up the difference between the two marketplaces is like this:

- Ebay is like the world's biggest flea market. You set up your "stand", offer your products, handle transactions, shipping, and everything else. It's 100% your responsibility. Therefore, you may end up putting more work into it for less profits.

- Amazon FBA is like owning a shelf at a very large department store. Your biggest job is to make sure that your shelf stays stocked and that it's visible. Unlike Ebay, however, the department store handles the transactions, shipping, and all the tough work. In my experience that equals less work and more profits.

What to sell on Amazon FBA

Another thing that's amazing about this business model is that there's no one way how to sell on Amazon FBA. Here's a few of the most popular methods:

1 Arbitrage

Find low-priced items in retail stores or other online marketplaces to resell on Amazon at a higher value.

2 Wholesale

Buy bulk discount branded goods to resell on Amazon at a higher value.

3 Used Book Sales

Purchase used books at book sales, yard sales, or other places to resell on Amazon at a higher value.

4 Private Label

Research and manufacture your own branded products to sell on Amazon FBA where you control every aspect of the product. *This is my preferred method how to sell on Amazon FBA.

What is private label?

A private label product is manufactured by a contract or third-party manufacturer and sold under a retailer's brand name. In other words, you take a product that already exists and manufacture it with your own brand and logo.

Most successful Amazon FBA sellers are private label sellers.

Why sell private label versus the other methods?

Private label offers a ton of advantages over the other methods. Here's a few:

- 1 Less work sourcing. You only have to source a single product in large quantities versus many small products like you would with arbitrage or used book sales.
- 2 Price control. The Amazon listing for your product is under your control. Therefore, you don't have to worry about underpricing your competition like you would with wholesale or arbitrage.
- 3 Higher profits. In my experience, private label is the most profitable and predictable method of how to sell on Amazon FBA.

How much money can I make selling private label?

Of course, everyone's success varies with private label. However, if you follow the basic steps myself and Lenny outline to creating a private label product, this is roughly what you can expect to earn:

How much work does the private label method take?

Ever hear of the “4-hour work week” by Tim Ferris? It’s the idea that you can design the lifestyle that you want so long as you can put your income on autopilot.

And that’s pretty much what you’re learning when you learn how to sell on Amazon FBA. Once your product is created and live on Amazon, you don’t have to do anything else but check on your advertising and make sure your inventory is stocked.

Just 4-hours a week and you can earn an extra $3,000 per month!

How do I create my first private label product?

It can be done in just five easy steps:

- 1 Research high-demand/low-competition products using our easy-to-use app called JungleScout. Get started with a free 7-day trial at: <https://junglescout.grsm.io/PartnerZ0NO8>
- 2 Source those products through Alibaba, a website that puts you in touch with 1000's of manufacturers who are eager to do business with you.
- 3 Create a brand new listing on Amazon. It's so simple, you can do it in less than 40 minutes.
- 4 Ship the products to an Amazon warehouse so it can be part of the Amazon FBA program and you won't have to do all the back-breaking work.
- 5 Launch and advertise your product using Amazon's own advertising system which is as simple as clicking a few buttons.

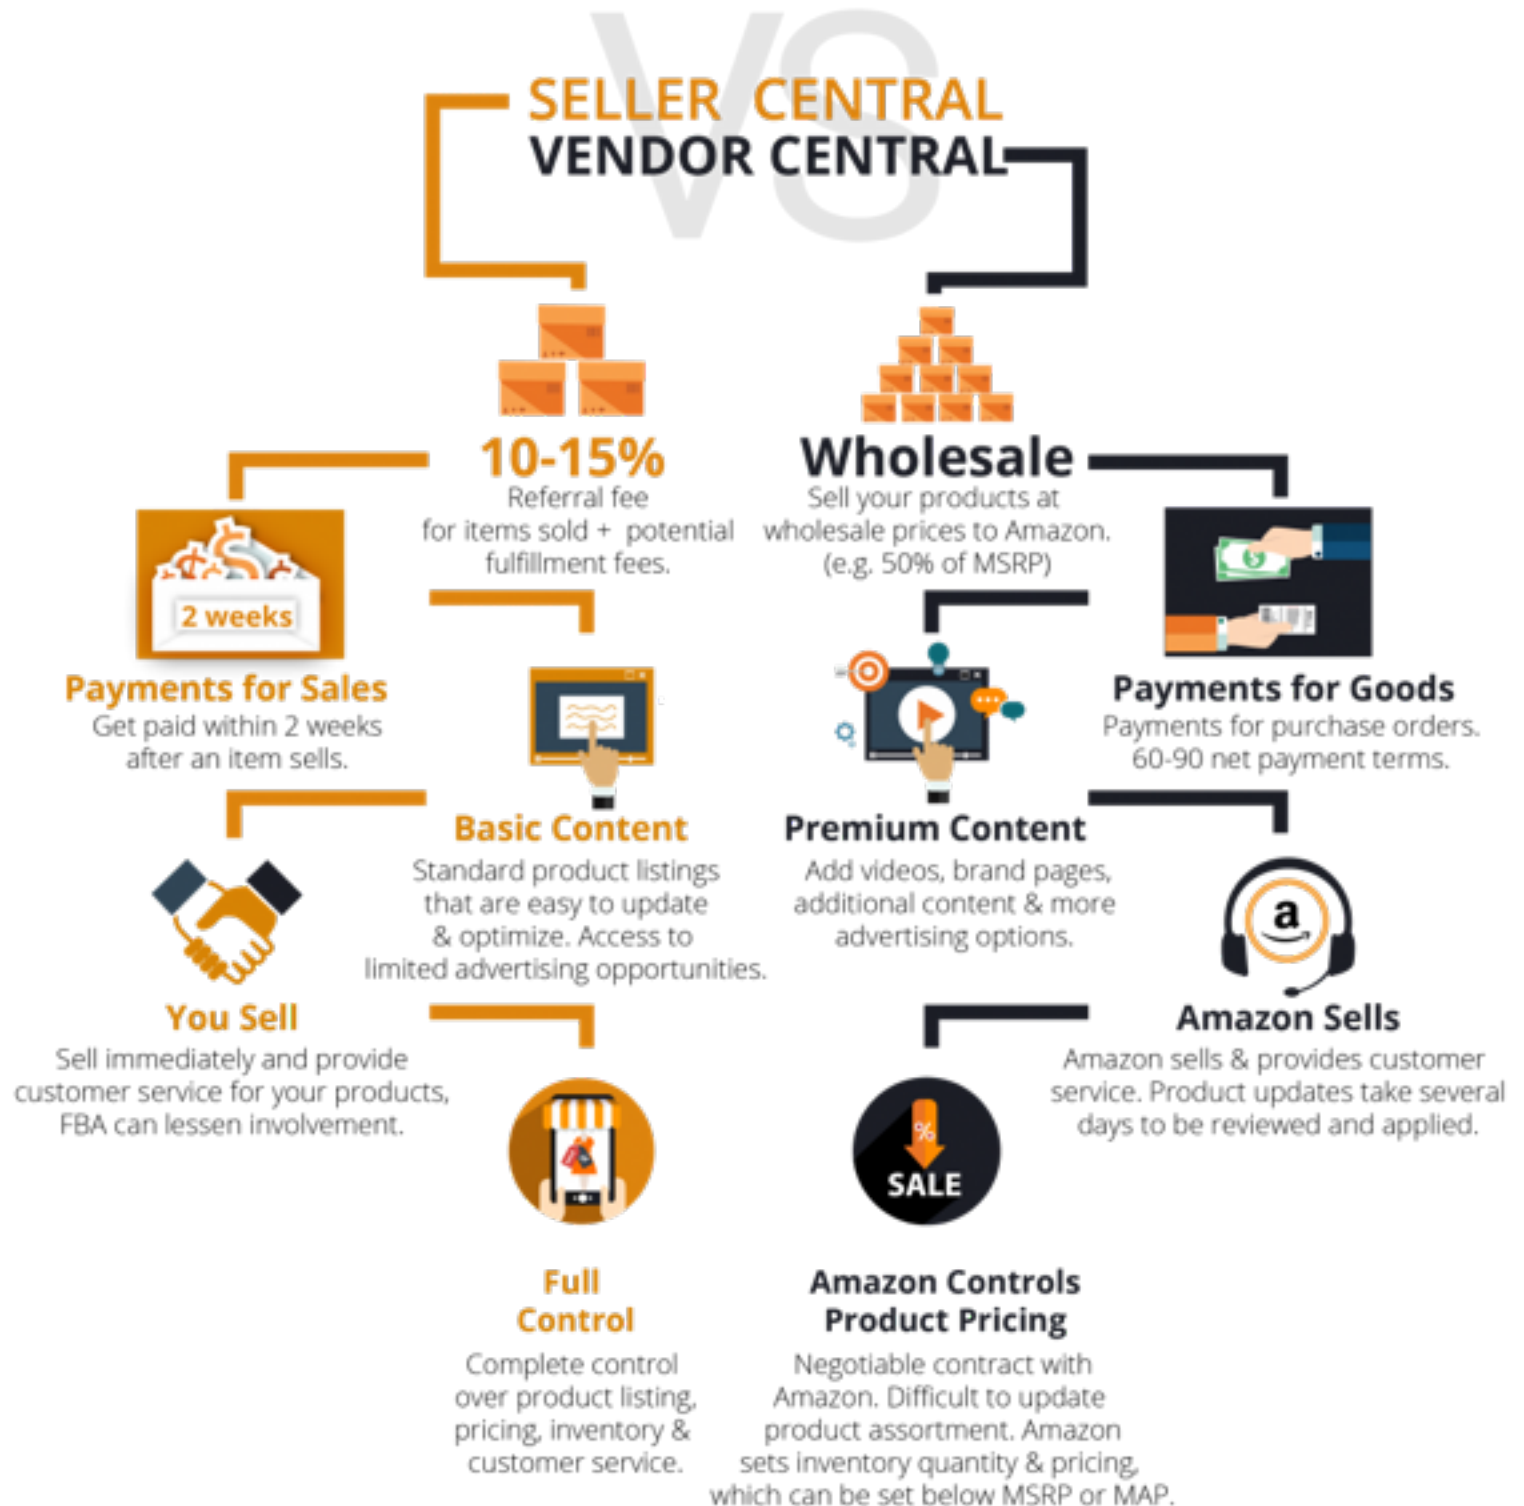

Then, all you have to do after that is sit back and watch the profits roll in!

How to Find a Profitable Private Label Product

I know this is a lot of information to digest, but now it's time to demonstrate how easy it is to find a private label product for you to sell.

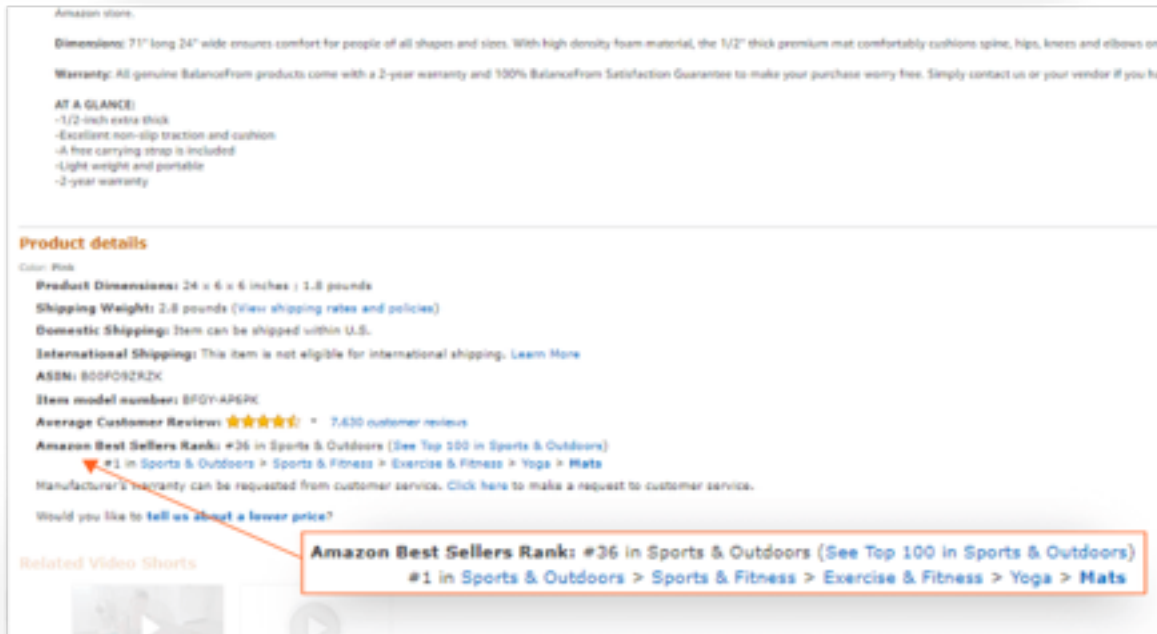

This is an important part of selling on Amazon called “product research.” If that sounds like a lot of work, don’t worry. Believe it or not, Amazon actually offers up data on how well each of their products sell.

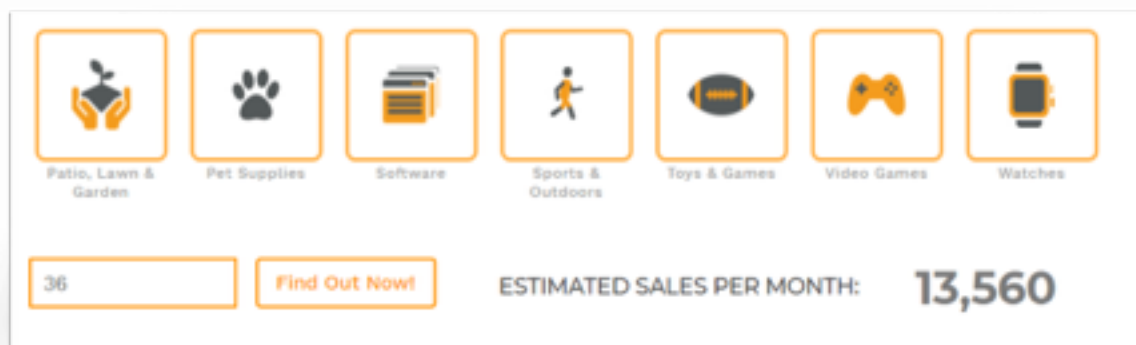

In fact, one of the key metrics that we use to determine a product’s demand is found right on the Amazon product pages: the Best-Seller Ranking (BSR).

Here's an indepth article for you that explains Amazon’s Best-Seller Rank: everything you need to know to succeed:
<https://www.junglescout.com/blog/amazon-best-sellers-rank/>

What is the Amazon Best-Seller Ranking?

Each and every product on Amazon gets a BSR. The lower the BSR, the more sales the product makes. We can take the BSR and translate it into average monthly sales. For example, if we want to see how well the same product above does in sales, we can take the BSR and put it into our FREE sales estimator tool. Check out what we get:

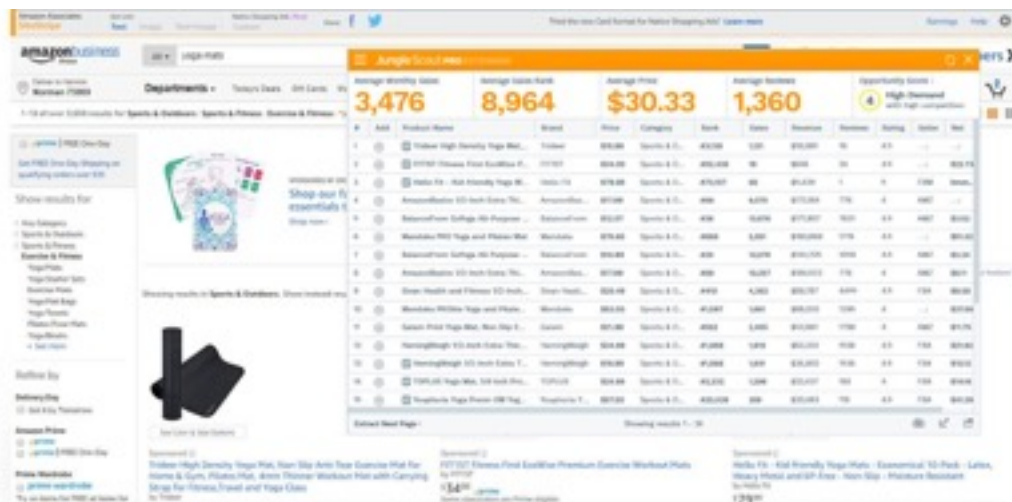

Of course, it only helps you learn how well one product is doing at a time. We want to see how multiple products in a single search (also called a ‘niche’) are doing and what their average is. You could do all of that by hand on a spreadsheet, but it could take you hours. That’s what I used to do when I started, and I don’t recommend it! Use an extension ...

Extension

With the Chrome extension, you can pull up an Amazon search page and simply click the “JS” Chrome button to discover how profitable that product niche is. Immediately, the extension creates a spreadsheet that estimates the sales for each and every product on that page in 10-seconds or less.

Take a look at the results for yoga mats:

The screenshot shows the Amazon marketplace search results for 'yoga mats'. The JS Chrome extension is overlaid on the page, displaying a summary of the search results and a table of product data. The summary shows 3,476 products, 8,964 reviews, an average price of $30.33, and 1,360 reviews. The table lists various yoga mats with their respective prices, brands, and other details.

Product Name	Brand	Price	Category	Rank	Score	Reviews	Rating	Score	Est.
Yogahigh High Density Yoga Mat	Yogahigh	$30.00	Sports & Outdoors	400,000	100	100,000	4.5	100	100
Yogahigh High Density Yoga Mat	Yogahigh	$30.00	Sports & Outdoors	400,000	100	100,000	4.5	100	100
Yogahigh High Density Yoga Mat	Yogahigh	$30.00	Sports & Outdoors	400,000	100	100,000	4.5	100	100
Yogahigh High Density Yoga Mat	Yogahigh	$30.00	Sports & Outdoors	400,000	100	100,000	4.5	100	100
Yogahigh High Density Yoga Mat	Yogahigh	$30.00	Sports & Outdoors	400,000	100	100,000	4.5	100	100
Yogahigh High Density Yoga Mat	Yogahigh	$30.00	Sports & Outdoors	400,000	100	100,000	4.5	100	100
Yogahigh High Density Yoga Mat	Yogahigh	$30.00	Sports & Outdoors	400,000	100	100,000	4.5	100	100
Yogahigh High Density Yoga Mat	Yogahigh	$30.00	Sports & Outdoors	400,000	100	100,000	4.5	100	100
Yogahigh High Density Yoga Mat	Yogahigh	$30.00	Sports & Outdoors	400,000	100	100,000	4.5	100	100
Yogahigh High Density Yoga Mat	Yogahigh	$30.00	Sports & Outdoors	400,000	100	100,000	4.5	100	100

We can see that yoga mats on the first page of sales results are selling an average of XXX units per month. Plus, there’s other important information Extension provides:

- Average Best-Seller Ranking. The lower this is overall, the better it is for your future sales.
- Average Price. This shouldn't be too high or too low. In fact, I like to look for products priced between $18-$60.
- Average number of reviews. This lets you know how competitive a product is. I aim for products with less than 100 average reviews.
- Opportunity score (Pro version only). This awards each product niche a rating from 0-10. 0 being the worst, and 10 being the absolute best.

Armed with this powerful tool, you can quickly search through multiple product categories in just a few minutes.

Here's what else Extension does:

- Seller data. See who is selling the product: whether it's another FBA seller, a merchant seller, or even Amazon itself.
- Historical rank and sales. Want to know how well the product has done over time? Clicking on the BSR and average sales for each product will tell you.
- Google trends. Is your product a seasonal product or is it popular year around? You can find that out, too!
- International compatibility. Extension works in all Amazon marketplaces worldwide (Australia coming soon).

Remember when I mentioned that the average private label product can earn as much as $3,000 per month in profits? That's $36,000 per year. And all it takes is a few minutes of research to find your dream product.

Why sell on Amazon?

So firstly why sell on amazon?

While a lot of people know of the e-commerce giant and how huge it is in terms of shopping and their lightning quick shipping, what a lot of people don't realize is that it's actually made up of a lot of small sellers, everyday people like you and me. It's not just big brands selling on there! And it's not as hard as you think to set up a business.

That's the opportunity and there's two BIG reasons why you should utilize this platform over other e-commerce platforms out there.

Firstly, it's a huge marketplace with over 300 MILLION customers. So selling on this platform gives you exposure to a lot of customers!

The other key element is Fulfilled by Amazon. This means you send your products to Amazon's warehouses, where they look after all the shipping, handling and refunds. So it's a physical products business, that you can run remotely from anywhere.

No storing stock in your garage or running to the post office every day. This also makes it a very scalable business because you're not limited by how many sales you can make in a day!

Product Research

This is the most important step as the product you choose is the foundation of your business.

You want to find a product that lots of people are after, and isn't too competitive. A mistake people make when starting out, is just selecting products they like or that they think will do well.

We don't want to take that risk, and strongly recommend making data-driven decisions on what to sell.

Your Business Model

Now, there are different models you can take when selling. The one we recommend is called Private Label.

This means you essentially take a generic version of a product, perhaps make a slight improvement or adjustment to it, and then place your own logo onto that product and sell it under your own brand.

Other models, such as Wholesaling or Retail arbitrage, mean selling someone else's products.

We prefer the private label model because it gives you more control over the product and listing, and higher profit margins. This allows you to build your brand and not someone else's.

Product research is our specialty at Jungle Scout. You can do this without any tools, however it is a lot harder, and we believe it's just much easier to use a tool, even if it's not ours.

Get started with a free 7-day trial:

The Chrome Extension

This is the Chrome Extension. It runs on Amazon.com, as well as 8 other marketplaces. With it, you can quickly assess a product idea on Amazon. So let's say we wanted to look at "yoga mats".

After the search is complete, just click the extension. Now you'll see a great breakdown of this page.

Demand

Let's focus on the top 10 listings listed in the Chrome Extension. We mentioned that we wanted high demand? Well, that's represented by sales. We can see here estimates for all these top listings. As a guideline, we'd like to see at least 3000 sales combined in this top 10. We easily have enough here.

In addition to having 3000 sales, we also want to make sure that these sales are fairly well spread out.

For an example. If a product matches the 3000 sales criteria, however, two top listings have the majority of the sales. This would indicate that customers are mostly purchasing from these two listings, for whatever reason. So even if we got our listing into this top 10, on page 1 of the search results, it's going to be very difficult to pry sales away from these dominant sellers.

Competition

Next, is low competition.

The way we gauge that, is by the number of reviews on a listing. Most people tend to buy from listings that have higher numbers of good reviews, so that's why we use it as a metric of competition.

Usually, we'd like to see at least 4-5 listings with under 100 reviews. This makes it easier for us to catch up, starting from 0.

Outside that, we'd want no more than a couple of listings with up to 500 reviews. Anything closer to 1000 reviews is getting quite competitive and will take a long time to compete with.

Keep in mind, these are general guidelines. You can bend them a little, but the lower the reviews overall, the better. It's worth spending more time finding less competitive products, as this is often the biggest barrier.

Price

Next we want to look at price.

To keep it easy, you want to sell products between $15 to $60. Below $15, the profit margins get very slim by the time Amazon takes their cut, and above $60, customers are less likely to make impulse buys on a brand they don't know.

So when looking at these top 10, you want to get an idea of what price you could sell for.

If it falls between $15 to $60, then you're good!

The Product Database

We also have another great tool that really helps when you have no idea what to sell. It's called the Web App.

Inside is a tool called the Product Database. Here, you just select the categories you'd like to look at, and the filters you'd like to set such as high demand, cost or sales units.

Sales Goals

Aim for 3000 sales in the top 10 listings. That's the same as 300 sales per month on a single listing, so make that your minimum.

For low competition, we can set a maximum of 100 reviews. Also in the price point of $15 to $60. And click search!

What we've done is re-catalogued Amazon's best selling products into a database that's user-friendly for sellers! The product database is really great to help you generate product ideas!

You can then take one of these ideas, and then look up the niche on Amazon, so you can assess the top 10 listings, like we did earlier. And if you use the chrome extension as well, this process is made super simple!

Seasonality

The next consideration is seasonality.

Imagine looking at Christmas tree lights during December. The numbers would be huge! If you decided to sell that product, thinking you would get these sales all the time, you'd be in for a bit of shock come January 1st.

So we want to sell products, that sell all year around.

The best tool to use for this is Google Trends. Just input a search term, change the view to the past 5 years, and then search.

Using the Christmas tree light example, you'll see that there's a big spike around December each year. This is what we're trying to avoid. Instead, look for products that are more even all year around.

Baby Hooded Towels

Let's use Baby hooded towels for example. This has a similar search volume all year around without any obvious spikes.

The other good sign to look for is an upward trend.

Let's take an extreme example - "artificial intelligence". You can instantly see that this topic is getting more and more visibility. While it's not necessary to have this when looking for a product, if you do find something with an upwards trend, then you may have discovered an emerging market which could be a great opportunity!

Verify your sales

So let's say you've found a product or a niche that seems to be a good opportunity - it has high sales, low competition, good price point and not too seasonal. Before you go ahead and order this product, there's an additional step you should take to further verify this niche before spending a lot of money on it.

This is called PRODUCT TRACKING. Instead of just checking the sales estimates that one time, you continue to check them for a period of time. We recommend at least 2 weeks, to 4 weeks.

The reason being there are times when a product's sales are inflated, due to the seller running a discounted promotion, or some other once off type of situation.

But by checking the sales every day for several weeks, you can see if the sales stay consistent or drop down. You can do this manually using the Chrome Extension like we showed you, but a much easier way is using a different tool of ours called the Product Tracker, which is part of our Jungle Scout Web App. You don't need this tool but it does make the process a lot faster and automated.

Get started with a free 7-day trial:

<https://junglescout.grsm.io/PartnerZ0NO8>

Let's show you an example using our Product Tracker in the Web App. Say you like the look of these baby hooded towels. This is in fact a product that we publicly launched in 2017, and you can check out the entire case study right here.

You want to track as many listings as possible on this first page of results. If you have both the Chrome Extension and the Web App, you can just simply, click the + sign next to each one and it will add to the Product Tracker.

Once you've narrowed your research down to a single product, the next step is to source your product. Most commonly, people go to Alibaba, but you can also go to Global Sources, or AliExpress for smaller orders.

Sourcing your Products

Alibaba is by far the biggest marketplace. Here you can search for the product that you're looking for. We recommend searching by 'Suppliers' rather than products because often suppliers have a bunch of listings that are all more or less the same.

Also, tick the gold supplier box. This narrows down your results to what's usually a better list.

Now you want to contact 10 to 15 different suppliers. A tip here is to favorite suppliers that you like, as you go. From a search page, click here to favorite, or you can do it from inside a company profile over here. Now, from the favorites page, you can contact them all at once.

Email Template

Here's an example of an email we would send.

Hi There,

My name is (your name) from (your company). We are looking to purchase baby hooded towels for the US market. See attached photos. Our primary sales channels will be online. We estimate up to 20,000 to 30,000 pieces annual purchase volume after a trial order of 500 sets and samples evaluation.

Specifications:

- Size – 34in x 34in (92cm x 92cm)
- Hood should have “ears”
- Material: 100% Bamboo, organic preferred
- Quality: high thread count and very soft
- No loose threads
- Color: white, no dyes

Do you manufacture these types of bamboo baby towels with hood? If so, please provide the following:

- 1) Photo, Specifications and EXW Quotation
- 2) Are you a manufacturer or trading company?
- 3) What is your lead time for samples and trial order?
- 4) Can we add our logo to this item? If so, where can the logo be added?
- 5) What is the sample cost with shipping by express to USA?

Appreciate your reply. Thank you.
(your name)

Sourcing your Products

You want to ask as many questions as possible in your initial email. You'll be contacting a lot of suppliers so you don't want to be constantly going back and forth with each one.

Also, it's a good first test as you'll see which suppliers answer your questions, and which ones just send you a generic response. You want to work with people that have made an effort to answer you personally.

Other questions you might ask, include: do you offer samples? How much for a sample to be sent to your post code or to the US? How much for 500 pieces? How much for 1,000 pieces?

Can I make a first order of only 200 pieces, and how much for that?

Plus anything else specific to your product.

Can you make this product to this size or out of this material?

Evaluate the replies

Once you've received some replies, it's time to evaluate them. Do they have good English or communication? Did they answer all of your questions, or did they just give you a generic answer? Write down all the prices they've given you.

Some other things to note:

Suppliers will often ask to continue the conversation on Skype or email. This is totally normal!

Expect to pay anywhere from $50 to $100 US for a sample. I know this can sound like a lot for a single sample but just put it down to the cost of doing business. If you can, it's a good idea to get a sample from 2 to 3 different suppliers.

Sometimes you might get a better price from one but better communication from another. To help with this, get a sample in your hands and then you can compare the actual quality of the product between the different suppliers as well.

Once you've received and inspected your samples, perhaps followed up with any additional questions, then go ahead and tell your supplier that you'd like to place your first order. Often you can negotiate paying 30% upfront, and then the remaining 70% before they ship the product. Or, sometimes it might be 50 upfront and 50% after.

Aim to negotiate terms regarding payment for samples. Avoid PayPal, as they charge a 5% fee. From our research, we recommend using Jungle Scout to sort out the payment options and also because it's a trusted resource for Amazon FBA sellers.

Payment

Telegraphic Transfer (TT) is common which is basically a wire bank transfer. You can also pay via Alibaba. And, some suppliers will offer trade assurance which is really nice to get because this basically insures your shipment in case anything goes wrong.

This is only if you order through Alibaba, so try to go for this option if you can.

We recommend staying away from Western Union though because there's no real means of recourse if anything goes wrong.

Production will typically take anywhere from two to six weeks. This gives you time to get a bunch of other things done.

Using Amazon Seller Central

Firstly setting up an Amazon account. You have two options. You've got a professional account which is $39.99 a month, or an individual account that doesn't have a monthly fee, but you pay $1 per sale.

So if you're serious about building a business on Amazon and plan to sell more than 40 products a month, you're much better off going with a professional account. This also gives you access to other advertising and business metrics that the individual doesn't.

So click start selling to begin the process, then follow the prompts. You'll be asked for a bunch of information, including a credit card for any charges, a bank account for you to receive payments and also what you'd like your store name to be. You'll also be asked whether you're selling as an individual or a company. Now, keep in mind that you can start selling as an individual, and then switch to a company later on if you choose.

Create a Listing

Once you've set up your Seller Central account, come up to catalog, add products in order to create your first listing.

Scroll down a bit, you'll see list a new product, and you'll notice that Amazon wants you to search for your product name. If you type it in here, it will find existing listings. Now this isn't what you want to do.

Head down and find the most relevant category for your product. Hit select. Now fill out basic information about your product.

The manufacturer name is up to you. That can be the same as your store brand name, or it can be different.

Creating a listing

One tip though on creating your brand name ...

What we suggest is creating one that's fairly universal. Jungle Scout's Office Supplies for instance, is a very specific niche and only relevant to office supplies.

Get started with a free 7-day trial:

<https://junglescout.grsm.io/PartnerZ0NO8>

Whereas Jungle Scout Creations is a much broader name that you can sell lots of different products beneath and not be limited to one niche.

Next, you'll be asked to enter a Product ID for your listing. This is most commonly a UPC barcode.

You will need to purchase one of these, and the best place to do so is at GS1.

If you wanted to setup your product with variations, you can do that over here. It asks you to enter in your price, however you don't have to do this now and can just check the skip box, and set your price later. This is where you add product images which we'll talk about later.

Once you've completed the required fields you can click Save and finish, which allows you to access your product's FN SKU barcode and get a shipping address which you'll need in the next steps.

So. once your listing has been created, come over to inventory, manage inventory, where you'll see your listing displayed. Click here, and then Print Item Labels.

Click print again. This gives you what is called the FN SKU barcode. This is the one barcode that Amazon requires you to have on your product packaging.

You don't need the UPC barcode - the one that we talked about before. You only need this one displayed on your product packaging. Now send this FN SKU barcode to your supplier.

They can either stick that onto the packaging of each item, or you can include it in the design of customized packaging, so that it never needs to be stuck on by hand, again.

Product Packaging Design

This brings us to the packaging, which we recommend getting customized.

This sets your product further apart from the competition. The sooner you can get this done the better, because it will take a couple of weeks for them to produce it. So ask your supplier for the different packaging options that come with your product. Select the one that you like the most, and then ask them for a template.

You'll want to receive a file type such as .ai or .eps. These are design friendly formats.

To get your design made, we recommend the Jungle Market, where you can find freelancers specific to Amazon sellers, including designers who are experienced with product packaging and know Amazon's requirements. Get started with a free 7-day trial:

<https://junglescout.grsm.io/PartnerZ0NO8>

Here are a few of the most important things to have on your product packaging.

Your brand name, the product name, a photo of the product, where it was made such as made in China, and then just make sure that there's nothing else that you're legally required to put on there, based on the type of product that it is.

To figure this out, just google “packaging requirements for your product” to nail this down.

When you have the final design, send it through to your supplier. They might ask you to purchase a large quantity of the boxes upfront such as 3,000 or 5,000 pieces.

This is fine as it brings the price down, and they'll just hold onto those extra ones until you make later orders

Product Photography

There are 2 ways to do this - either hire a photographer or do it yourself.

1. Hire a photographer

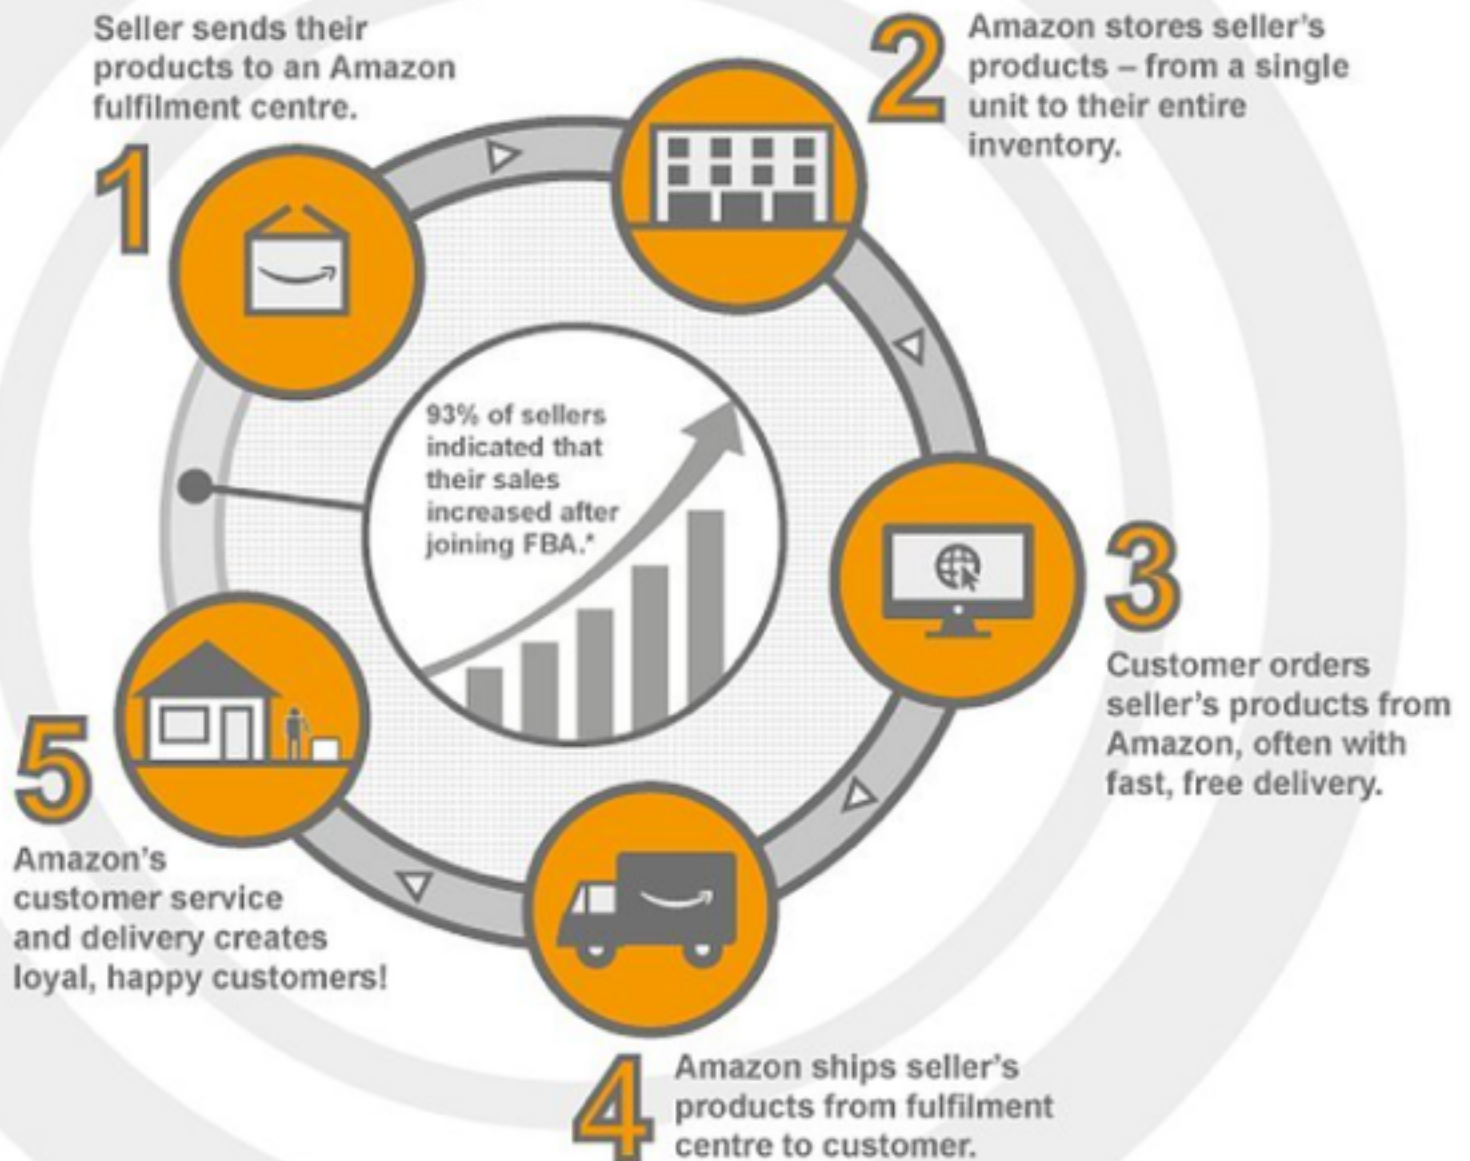

The way it works is that you would send them a sample of your product and they will deliver a set number of images back to you within the agreed upon time.

2. Take the pictures yourself

If you're taking photos yourself, here's a couple of things to keep in mind. Your main image needs to be against a white backdrop, take up at least 85% of the image, and have no extra props, text or logos on that image. For your other images, try showing some different angles of your product, show it being used by different people, maybe also include a photo of it with its packaging which you can add later on, once you actually have the packaging.

How Fulfilment by Amazon Works

FBA helps third-party sellers grow by giving them access to Amazon's world-class fulfilment resources and expertise, acclaimed customer service, and trusted shipping options.

Copy Counts: The Importance of Good Copywriting

Next, you want to write a detailed title, bullet points, and description. Take your time here because this is what is going to sell your product once people click onto your listing. Also include your main keywords wherever you can because this will help your listing rank higher in Amazon's search results.

Keyword Research for your Product Listing

One of the best keyword research apps for finding the best keywords to use for your Amazon product description is Keyword Scout app, that you can get exclusively inside the Jungle Scout app, at: <https://junglescout.grsm.io/PartnerZ0NO8>

Freight Forwarders: Getting your product from China to the U.S.

To get your product from China to the US, you have two options - asking your supplier to organize this, using their own freight forwarders, or finding your own.

We started out using our supplier. This was very easy, because they just gave me a quote, I paid them and it was sent straight to Amazon without any hassle. It also tends to be a little cheaper than using your own freight forwarder.

The cons?

Whenever there were issues with customs or anything like that, we had to relay messages through our supplier as the middle-man which was a little frustrating and scary at some points, so there was less control over our shipment.

Finding your own freight forwarder in the US, gives you a lot more control over your shipment. You have direct contact and it's easier to sort out any issues that might surface.

One of the best freight forwarders is Flexport. You can get exclusive access to Flexport inside the Jungle Scout app, at: <https://junglescout.grsm.io/PartnerZ0NO8>

As production comes to an end, you'll need to create a shipment in Seller Central.

This gives you the physical address of the fulfillment centre that you need to send your shipment too.

1. Go to Inventory.
2. Then, go to Manage Inventory.
3. Then, click the drop down menu of the product you are ordering.
4. You'll be asked whether you want to create a new shipping plan or add to an existing one.

The early days of Amazon.com

In this example, we're creating a new one.

For the 'ship from' address, put in your supplier's address if you're using them to organize shipping, or if you have your own freight forwarder, then they might tell you to use their address instead.

In our example, we're using Flexport as a freight forwarder and they've instructed us to use their address here. If you're just sending in the one type of product, you want a case-packed product.

Individual products is if you're sending a bunch of different products inside one box.

On this page, you need to enter the quantity of units that you're going to be sending. This doesn't have to be the exact number of units per case and number of cases as you can create the box configurations later on. The most important thing is that the total number of units is correct. You can modify this later, but it only allows you to change it by 5 units less or more, so make sure this number is accurate.

Amazon now wants you to confirm that you're aware of any storage fees.

For some products, you might have to give more information if it's in a restricted category.

But, for the most part, you shouldn't need to take any further action.

Click continue.

Again in most cases, you should be able to click continue again.

Here you get to choose whether you're going to apply the FN SKU barcodes yourself or whether Amazon is going to do it.

If we select Amazon, you'll see it's going to cost 20 cents per unit. So usually you can get your supplier to do this.

Let's make this merchant. If you haven't got the labels already, you've got the option to download them here. However, you can also do that from your inventory screen like I showed you earlier. Click Continue.

You can give a name to your shipment over here. Then confirm all these details are correct, and approve shipment. Come over to work on shipment.

Now you'll see the Amazon warehouse and importantly the address, which you can copy and send to your freight forwarder or supplier.

Now you select your Shipping Service.

Depending on the freight forwarder you use, you'll either choose your own shipping, meaning you're looking after the shipment the entire way to the fulfillment centre, OR you can choose to use an Amazon partnered carrier, which can arrange pick up within the US at a discounted rate for Amazon.

For instance, what some people like to do is get their product shipped from China to their house, in order for them to inspect the goods first.

This would be a good time to use Amazon's discounted shipping to send it that last stretch.

Generally, if you're using your supplier to organize shipping, then you would select, "using your own carrier" as they will deliver right to Amazon's doorstep, or if you've organized your own freight forwarder, then they will give you instructions on which option to choose here.

Let's look at using an Amazon partnered carrier in this example.

Select whether everything is in one box or multiple. Usually it would be multiple. Now you can set up multiple box configurations.

Make sure your total adds up to the correct amount. For example, here's a configuration we've used before.

Again, Your supplier can tell you the box weight and dimensions. Then, hit confirm.

As we've selected an Amazon carrier, click 'Calculate' to view the approximate charge. You then check the box and agree to Accept the Charges. This is where making sure your box weight in particular, is accurate, so you don't get surprised by a larger shipping cost later. Of course if you selected your own shipping carrier earlier, then you would skip this part.

Now click Print Box Labels, which will give you a PDF with shipping labels that you can send to your freight forwarder or supplier, or if your shipment is coming to your house, you can apply them then - as long as they're attached to the boxes before they're sent into Amazon.

This is really important as this is how Amazon identifies these boxes as yours.

Finally, make sure the labels are on the correct box!

Click Complete Shipment and, you'll be done.

If you're worried about the quality, you can hire a third-party inspection company to check your products before they leave the factory. It's a much better idea to do that now than when it reaches the US because by that point, there's not much that can be done.

Launching your Product: 2 Things you Need

When you first start out, there are two things you need, sales and reviews.

This is going to give you the momentum you need to get ranked on the most popular search terms, and get found by customers, and ultimately make sales.

The way customers find products on Amazon is by typing into the search bar the product that they're looking for, selecting a listing that they like, and then purchasing from there. So your goal is to make sure that your listing appears when they type in the name of your product.

So if you're selling this product for instance, the baby hooded towel, you would probably want to be ranked under the keyword baby hooded towel. So when a customer types this search term into Amazon, they see your listing up here in the top results.

Some of the other keywords you might want to rank for might be hooded baby towel even hooded baby towels for boys, or for girls, or for set. So you see by ranking or appearing on these search term pages is how customers discover you and how you get sales. A brand new listing like yours is probably gonna be on page 20 or 50 and never get seen by the customers.

The only way to start climbing the ranks and eventually appear on page one which is where most of the sales happen is by getting sales.

Once you've got that visibility, how do you then make customers purchase your listing over someone else's?

This is where reviews come in. Customers purchase from listings that have high numbers of reviews that they trust.

So that's why it's really important for you to get sales and reviews when you first start out.

Let's talk about sales.

When you first launch your product, it's a really good strategy to offer what's called a giveaway promotion.

This is where you offer 50% or more off a number of your units just to get those sales happening at the start.

You can host this on deal websites where customers come to get discounted products. The one that we recommend is called Jump Send. Get started at: <https://www.JumpSend.com>

Using the baby hooded towels as an example, you'll see that a lot of these listings are priced between $15 to $20. So if we come across to Jump Send, if you look at baby hooded towels, you'll see that people are offering quite steep discounts anywhere from 50% off all the way up to even 90% off for these same products. By offering this steep discount, you almost guarantee that you're going to get a lot of sales.

Lose Money at the Beginning

This does mean you're likely going to lose money on these sales at the beginning.

But, it's important that you have this budget in place because, as we mentioned, you do need these initial sales in order to get your listing launched and ranked for some keywords so that you can begin to get natural, organic sales.

A strategy that we've seen work really well, is to look at how many sales the listings on page one are currently getting, and then matching that number of sales in giveaways.

In Amazon, type in 'baby hooded towels' and bring up the Chrome Extension.

We can then see the monthly sales numbers, and the average. On a daily basis this is around 12 sales a day. So we would aim to give away around 12 units a day, and do this for 1 to 2 weeks.

How to set up a promotional giveaway

From Promotion, come down to Create New. Here you select one of the products on your account, or you can search for one. We already have a promotion set up so let's show you that one. It will automatically pull the price and description from Amazon. If you've updated the price recently though, you can come over here and refresh it. Select your product category.

It's important to have a support email here, in case your shoppers have any issues and they can contact you. Also make sure your shipping method is accurate, whether that's Fulfilled by Amazon or Merchant, so customers know how long to expect for shipping. Then you get to choose between a standard URL and a keyword targeted URL .

Make Money While You Sleep with Amazon FBA

Have you ever wondered the secret to making money while you sleep? This is a blueprint; a blueprint to building an online revenue stream that makes you money even while you sleep. As a matter of fact, I did $6,496 in sales last night while I was snoozing.

$23,521 in sales for the entire day, but a whopping $6,496 came in the hours while I slept as you can see from the chart above.

Did you notice the yawning emoji around the 10:00 AM mark?

I put that there because it's around the time I wake up each day. Sometimes earlier, sometimes later. I get up when I wake up.

I'm afforded this luxury because I don't have a job. I have a business.

I don't miss my daughters' gymnastics practices anymore, I don't suffer through restless nights worrying about rumors of company downsizing, or feel as though my talents are being squandered or grind my teeth about being under appreciated and underpaid.

This page is here to show you the exact foundation of our business model step-by-step, so that you can copy it.

In order to make this business work, you have to put in the work! You can't just skim over this article and then expect to start making tens of thousands of dollars next month. It just doesn't work like that.

It's true that my business generates well over a half million dollars in revenue each month and I work less than 6 hours a week in it, but I had to work my butt off over the last 5 years to get to this point. I am not an overnight success and this is not a get rich quick scheme.

This is a “put in the hard work, dedicate yourself and build a viable online business that will stand the test of time”... actionable plan.

Also, please realize that this is just a blueprint.

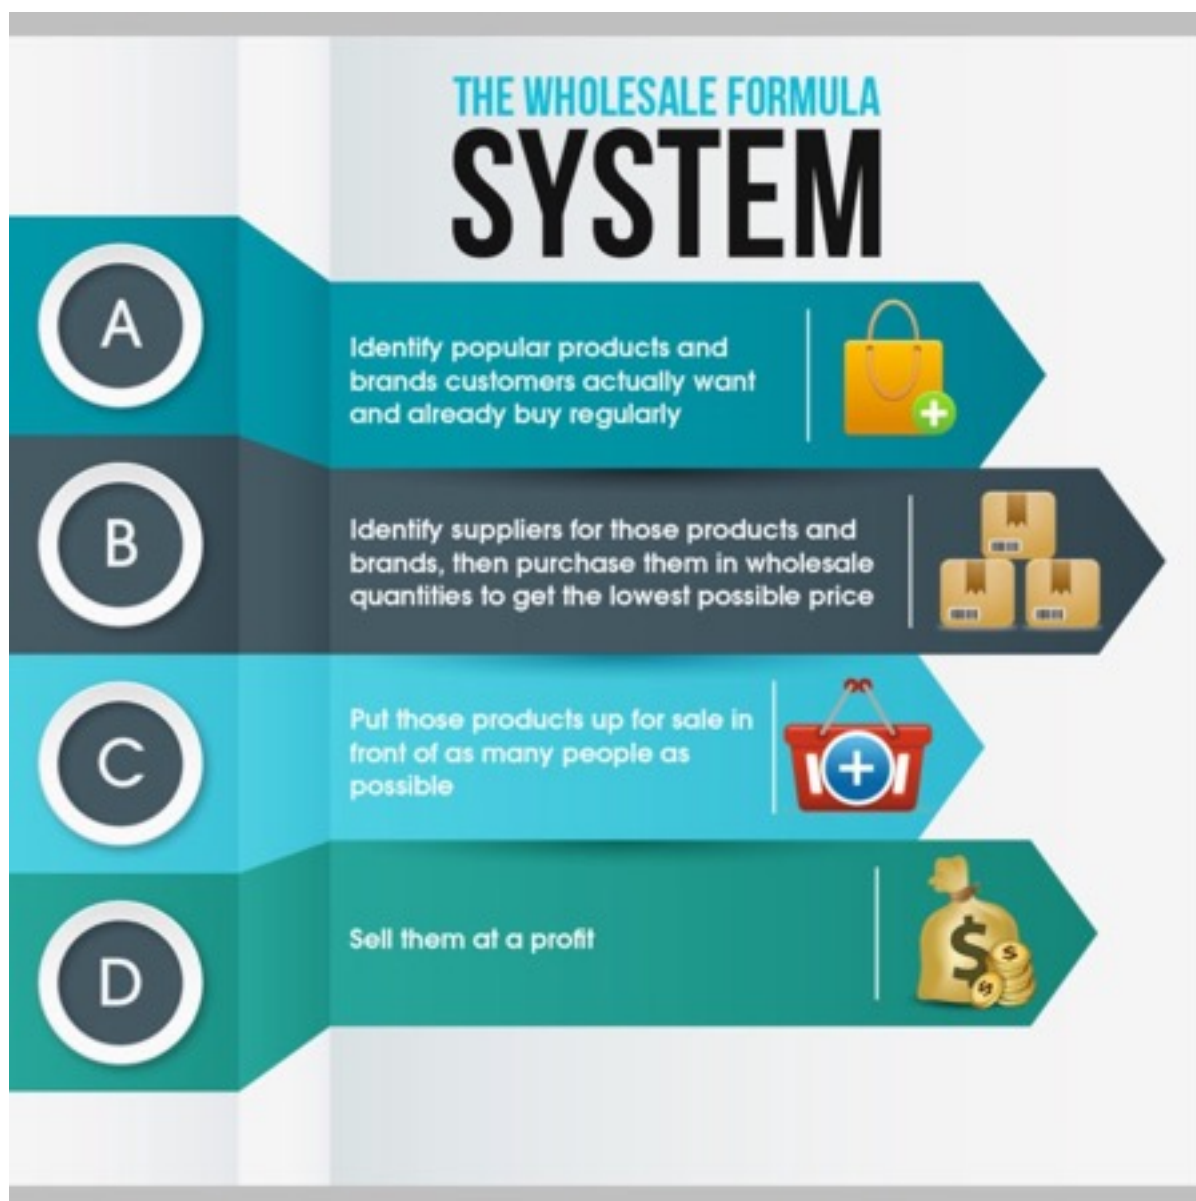

You have now been thoroughly warned. If you fully understand that successful businesses are built not by chasing unicorns, but with sweat equity, then you should continue reading.

The System

The system my business partner Eric and I have used to create a multi-million dollar online business is not new or revolutionary in any way. Actually, it has existed pretty much forever.

It's the same system used by Walmart, Target, and Costco. The system, in its simplest form, is this:

It really is that simple. We buy low (wholesale prices) and sell high (retail prices).

We call this process wholesale.

Now here is the secret sauce; the thing that makes the wholesale business model possible for just the average person like you and me to replicate. What business model is this? Amazon.com

For decades, the hardest part to replicate in the business model for the average Joe was part C.) putting products in front of enough customers. It required a lot of money to have enough retail space to store and display all that product, and even more money for the marketing and promotion to get people into your store and buying.

Amazon has completely revolutionized online business forever because their massive marketplace will do that part for you. This makes it possible for almost anyone at any level, people like you and me, to start an online retail business.

Which leads us right into the first of our 6 steps

1. Understand the Amazon marketplace

If you are going to be selling stuff on Amazon, it is important to understand what exactly Amazon is and how it works.

You might roll your eyes at the fact that this is a step at all, but I fully believe this is the most important step there is. The opportunity for people to totally change their life is right at their fingertips, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and they don't even know it exists.

Let's break it down.

Amazon is the world's largest online marketplace. That means more stuff is bought and sold on Amazon.com than anywhere else online (and it isn't even close).

The key word here is marketplace.

When you shop on Amazon and purchase a product, there is a really good chance that the product you bought was not actually sold by Amazon. Yes, you bought it on the Amazon website, but the real seller (the person who listed the product for sale on Amazon.com and gets paid for the sale) is just an average Joe. Heck, it could be me. It could be the guy or gal down the street. And after finishing this blog, it could be you!

About half of all products sold on Amazon.com are sold by 3rd party sellers like me.

HALF!

Ready to have your wig blown off?

Amazon did over 100 billion dollars in revenue for 2015 and they are still rapidly growing.

Do I really need to do the math for you? 100 billion in revenue, 50% of sales coming from 3rd party sellers like me and Joe down the street.

WOAH! That is a lot of money.

Amazon is basically waving around BILLIONS of dollars just begging people to come claim it.

If you are wondering what it costs or how hard it is to sign up as a seller ... well ... it is FREE. After you create your selling account, you are able to start selling. It is so easy that it would be hard for you to make up an excuse NOT to do it.

But there has to be a catch, right?

Well, sort of. Amazon takes a commission on every sale that is made on their website (and we gladly pay it).

Remember a second ago when I said for centuries the hardest part about owning a retail business was getting your products in front of as many people as possible? If you owned a physical retail store in your local city, on a good day you might have 50 people come into your store to browse.

By comparison, over 100 million people shop on Amazon each month.

WOAH! That is a lot of people.

Amazon provides the customer base so that you can easily sell tens, hundreds or even thousands of products every single day. But what about the delivery of those products? Even if you were able to sell that many products, how would you actually go about shipping out all those orders?

Well ... Amazon will actually do all that for you too. And more. Which leads us to our next step ...

2. Understand the Amazon FBA (Fulfilled By Amazon) Program

FBA, or Fulfillment by Amazon, is Amazon's third-party fulfillment system.

It is easily one of the most revolutionary leaps forward for business in the last half century. It is exactly what has enabled Amazon to generate half of its retail revenue from 3rd party sellers.

To explain what exactly FBA is, I will let you hear it straight from Amazon themselves with this 90-second video.

What is Fulfillment by Amazon (FBA)?

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=IAi4fPb_kp4

With FBA, Amazon will store all your products in their warehouse, prep and ship the products to customers for you, and handle all customer service and returns.

This means you can have your product suppliers just ship directly to Amazon's warehouses. You can literally sell millions of dollars' worth of product without ever having to physically see or touch it.

With FBA, you can accomplish by yourself from your living room what would have taken a warehouse and a team full of employees just 10 years ago.

So, what does it cost to enroll in FBA?

This is the crazy part. Enrolling in the Amazon FBA program costs you nothing up front. You only pay a per item fee for products when they actually sell.

3. Create Amazon Seller Account and Sign Up for FBA

This is the fastest and easiest step. I have already gone into detail about the benefits of selling on Amazon and using the FBA program.

All you have to do here is commit. Commit to whatever it is you want to accomplish. With Amazon FBA, you can go as big or small as you want.

Whether you just want to make extra money to save up for that vacation your husband/wife always wanted, or you want to build a highly profitable business that will serve as a lasting legacy for you and your family, it is all possible with FBA.

To get started making those goals a reality, all you have to do is set up an Amazon seller account.

You can create your seller account right here:

4. Find Products to Sell

So, what do I sell? The answer to that question is very simple. I sell what people are buying.

Picking the right products is the key to a successful e-commerce business. You make the wrong move here and you will end up spending your money on a bunch of junk that never sells.

The best way to find products that sell is to use a tool that's trusted by over 225,00 Amazon sellers. Click the link below to get started with a free 7-day trial:

Sourcing = The process of searching for products to sell.

There are two ways people traditionally source for products to sell on Amazon:

1) Going to trade shows or signing up for accounts with distributors and wholesale companies. They will then go through those companies' giant catalogs of branded inventory to find products they can buy to profitably resell on Amazon.

2) Contacting Chinese manufacturers and having them put your own brand name on generic products that you will launch on Amazon. This process is called private label.

One of the Amazon Fulfillment Centers.

Strategies for sourcing products

Both of those strategies for sourcing products—trade shows, contacting Chinese manufacturers—are harder, more time intensive and riskier.

How we source starts with our Reverse Sourcing concept. It is one of the major things we have developed that allowed us to succeed where many others have failed.

With Reverse Sourcing, we do things the safe and easy way.

You don't have to take big risks to make big money. Not on Amazon. Enter our method of Reverse Sourcing.

We start our search for products on Amazon itself. Remember when I said that you want to sell what people are buying? Well, Amazon actually tells you how often people are buying a product right there on the product page. It is called Amazon Best Sellers Rank.

And with some quick math, you can even estimate how many of that product you can sell per month.

It's really is a formula to success. After we have used our formula to identify great potential products comes the next step, which again is very different from conventional wisdom in the industry.

We don't go to major distributors or wholesale companies to purchase those awesome potential products we just found on Amazon. Instead, we cut out those middlemen and go straight to the source.

We reach out to the brand owner to open up a wholesale account with them directly.

When you buy direct, you get the best possible price. And when you get the best price, you make the most money!

5. Learn How to Buy Products Brand Owner Direct (Buy a cow from a farmer instead of milk from the store)

This may be the trickiest part of our blueprint.

It makes perfect sense that cutting out the middleman and buying direct is going to make you more money, but if it were that simple, everyone would be doing it.

Oftentimes, brand owners won't approve just anyone to sell their products on Amazon. Their brand is their entire life's work and they don't entrust it to just anyone. They are looking for certain qualities and attributes in their online sellers.

This part of the process is what we call The Great Filter. That's because this is where the majority of people fail with this business model. They never figure out how to break through and get approved to sell these amazing products.

Luckily, we have cracked the code.

There are 2 primary attributes brand owners are looking for.

They want sellers who:

1. Appear professional & trustworthy
2. Add value to their products and brand

Let's analyze these a little deeper. How do you appear more professional and trustworthy? Well, for one you have to remember that this will be a business to business relationship, so you actually want to appear and present yourself as an actual business.

(You know, don't send emails using a Hotmail address; stuff like that.)

Having a professional business website that represents your company is a great way to help legitimize you in their eyes.

When it comes to adding value to their products and brand, it's pretty simple. They want sellers that will contribute to the growth of their brand. They don't want a leech that is going to sell their product and nothing more.

You add value by doing things like improving the product page on Amazon, running pay-per-click advertising, and a myriad of other ways. Some of these may seem daunting, but trust me, they really aren't. We learned them on our own and have taught hundreds of The Wholesale Formula students how to successfully add value to brands, so don't worry, you can figure it out too.

You just have to ask yourself a simple question – “What is one thing I can do that will increase the sales, perception or exposure of this product/brand?”

The answer to that question is how you add value, and it is how you will convince a company to approve you as a seller.

Once you've mastered this, it is like having a license to print money.

6. Sell Products on Amazon

This is the fun part. Checking your phone to see how many products you have sold, and how much you've done in sales. It seriously becomes addicting. You will be doing it constantly.

Because you are using the power of Amazon FBA, you have a full-scale business operating around the clock. After you watch a movie on Netflix, you check your phone and "Oh, I did $1,100 in sales during that movie".

Maybe you hit the beach for a few days, come back and check your phone "Bam! I did $8,430 in sales while I was catching that surf and sun."

If this sounds totally cheesy and ridiculous, that's because it is. It is absolutely ridiculous, but it is all true and it is all real.

How to Build a Sellable Amazon Business using Amazon FBA

Many new Amazon sellers start with the same big goal in mind:
To be their own boss.

It sounds like the ultimate dream, right?

Instead of having to punch the clock at some office job, log your hours, and work so that somebody else can get rich, you get to be the boss of your own Amazon FBA business.

As an Amazon FBA seller, all of the hours you work on your business directly benefit you and your business.

This is a huge perk!

But it can also be a con.

Here's why ...

In a traditional Amazon storefront (as in my own Retail Arbitrage store), when you stop putting in the work, you eventually stop getting sales.

If I were to stop sourcing, stop shipping inventory to FBA, or even stop repricing, I'd really take a hit in my sales.

That's because my income from the Retail Arbitrage Business Model won't grow unless I'm there doing the work.

Now that's fine for me. I actually like running a Retail Arbitrage business.

But some sellers are looking for something more. A business model that is fully sustainable even when the owner (that's you!) isn't around.

That's possible with the Wholesale Sourcing business model and Amazon FBA. And sellers who create a sustainable Wholesale Sourcing business end up with much more than a steady paycheck from Amazon every two weeks.

They have a sellable business that they could step away from at any time.

An Amazon Job vs an Amazon Business

To understand the beauty of owning a sellable wholesale business, you first have to understand the difference between having an Amazon job and having an Amazon business.

I'll use my own Retail Arbitrage business as a good example of an Amazon job.

First of all, my Retail Arbitrage business is a pretty good job. I've used it to generate a six-figure yearly income by working on it less than 20 hours per week. And these days, we work on our Amazon business a few hours a week, and we still get a reliable income from it.

But the business fully relies on me (and Cliff!) to run it. If Cliff and I stopped sourcing, we would still get sales (that's the magic of FBA after all), but they would eventually die off.

Other aspects of the business could be automated. I could use repricing software, hire local help to go sourcing for me, and hire help to pack up FBA shipments. But I still need to be there to oversee operations and make buying decisions.

In other words, this is an Amazon job because if I don't do work, I don't get paid. Even though I get to be my own boss, I still have to show up and do some work!

Now let's take a look at an Amazon business. A business here is its own entity.

As it grows, it can provide work for you and others. Eventually, with a qualified team in place, the business can run without your work or input.

Your Amazon job won't turn into an Amazon business overnight. But you can do it with baby steps by asking “Is this task the best use of my time? Or could my own time be spent on more valuable tasks that will build my business?”

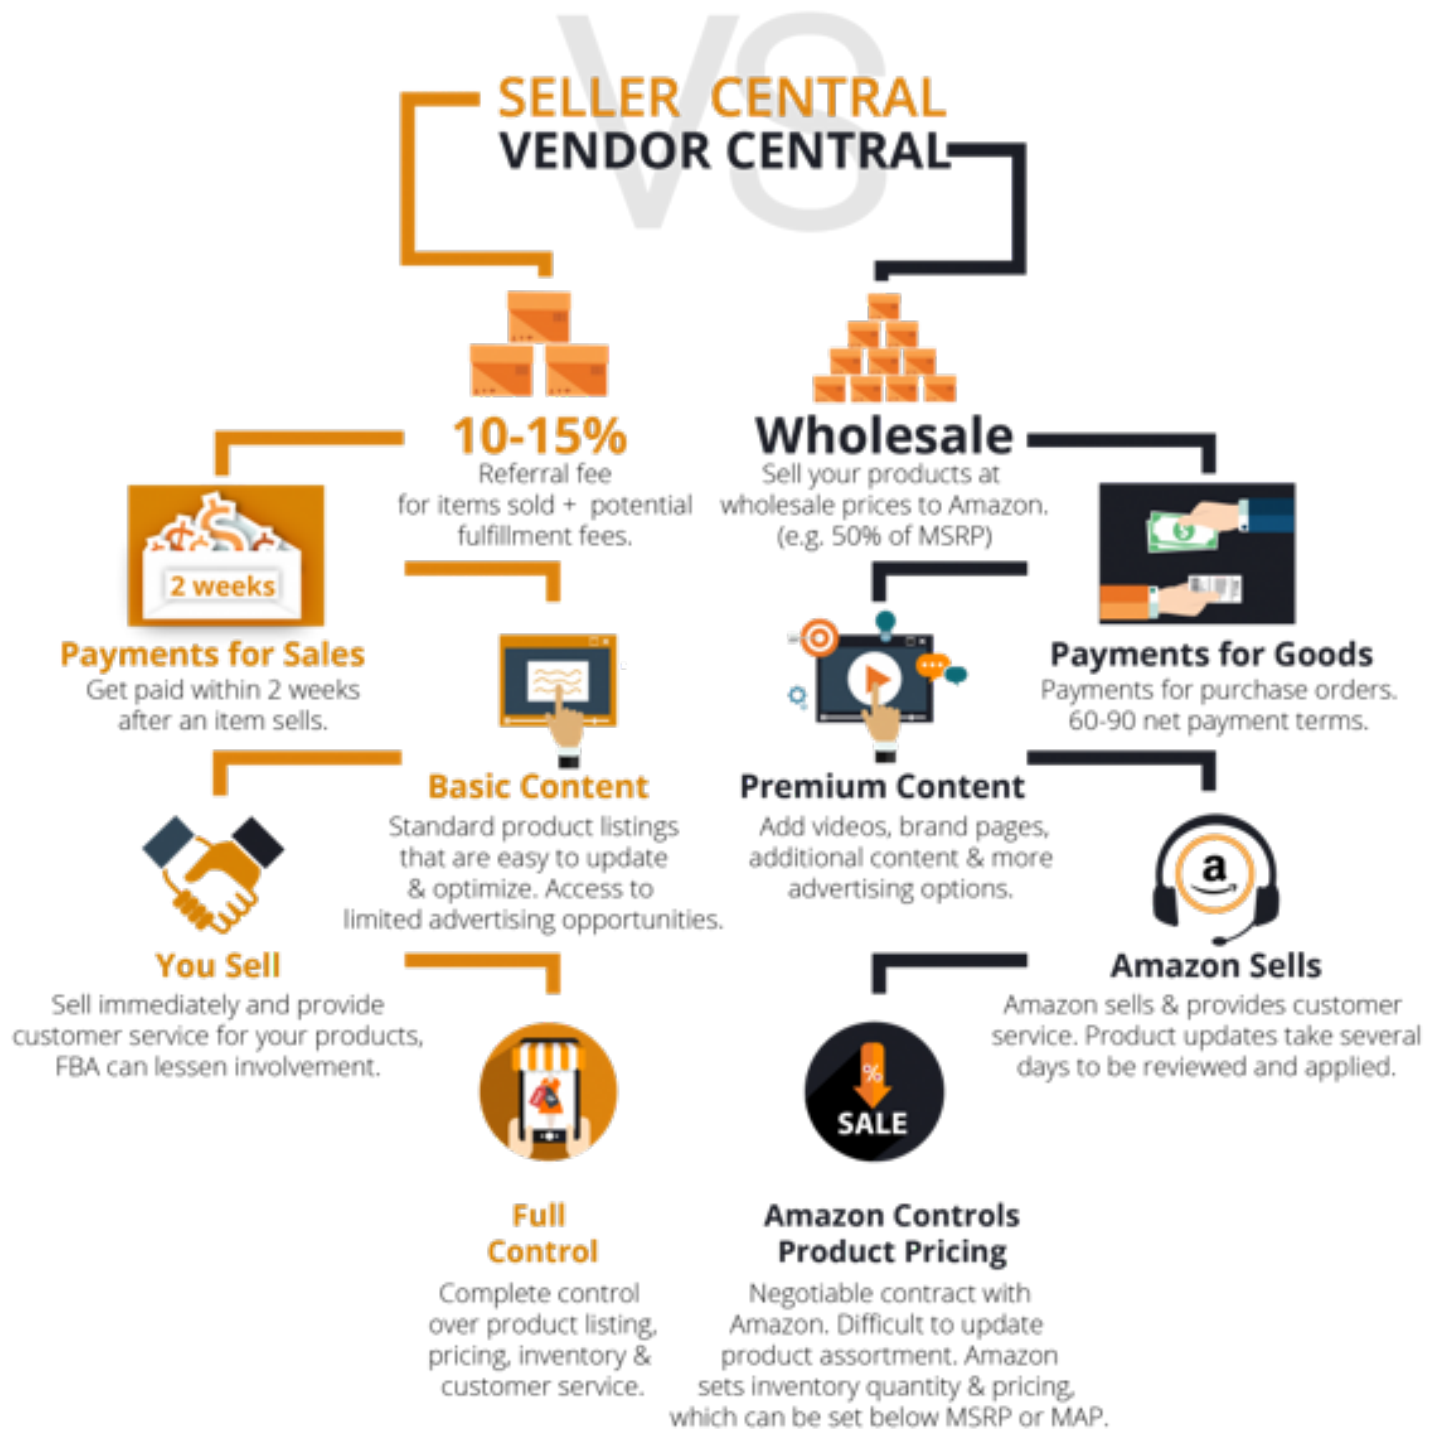

Over time, you as the business owner will only focus on the most valuable tasks. All other business tasks will be delegated to a team member.

In the case of a fully sustainable Amazon business, this means that you are no longer personally involved in sourcing, prepping, shipping, repricing, bookkeeping, or any other day-to-day tasks.

The best way to find products that sell is to use a tool that's trusted by over 225,00 Amazon sellers. Click the link below to get started with a free 7-day trial:

A Business as a Sellable Asset

Have you ever thought about what would happen if you tried to sell your Amazon business or storefront?

Let's role play for a minute to paint the picture. Imagine that you're a big shot investor. Maybe you're the next Mark Cuban and you're listening to a pitch for a hot e-commerce business.

Which business would you rather buy?

1. The rights to an Amazon storefront, but you still have to manage it and oversee the day-to-day operations. In the case of a Retail Arbitrage business, this means learning a lot about sourcing, shipping, and pricing.
2. An entire Amazon-based business that runs itself. You're simply the owner of this business and you know the business is going to continue to make a profit whether or not you put any hours into it.

Ok, Investor. Which one sounds more valuable to you?

If you picked B, you made a sound investment.

Now if you're not familiar with Amazon or you're only familiar with Retail Arbitrage, B may not even sound possible. I know that I get nervous when I send someone out to Big Lots to source for me – maybe they'll miss something good!

Before we go into the details of creating a sellable Amazon business, I want to make sure you understand the basics of Wholesale Selling on Amazon.

A lot of people naturally assume that being a wholesale seller means that you call up wholesaling companies and buy their products. But that's not what we're talking about today.

To create a sellable wholesale business, you need to use the Reverse Sourcing method. With this, you start your search for profitable products right on Amazon.com.

This helps you find products that are already selling well on Amazon.

Once you have a product in mind, you then contact the brand owner directly to discuss selling their product on Amazon. By skipping the wholesaler middleman, you're able to make more money on your sales.

The best way to find products that sell is to use a tool that's trusted by over 225,00 Amazon sellers. Click the link below to get started with a free 7-day trial:

FAQs about Buy Wholesale from China

1. Where can we find Chinese wholesalers on the internet?

In this post, part1 has already solve the problems. Let's sum up.

- Buying from Chinese Wholesale Sites
- Find Wholesale Companies form Directory
- Find Trade Shows and visit them

Also, I give you a list of wholesalers in China. You can check them out one by one.

2. Can I launch my own private label on wholesale products?

Yes. As long as you are working with a manufacturer, you can negotiate with them. Generally, they can do according your preference. But, maybe you need a large quantity orders, or they maybe reject you. And if you want private label on wholesale products, you need pay additional fees and the delivery times will also be long.

3. 'Made for China' products are not compliant with foreign labelling requirements.

As to this problem, you need not worry too much. I have listed the 6 best wholesale companies from China. They are all aimed at the foreign e-commerce business. Thus most of their products are compliant with foreign labelling requirements. Especially in China, they have a function to remind sellers the product infringement. So, I recommended you to confirm the exact products before making payment.

4. Actionable Tips on Buying Wholesale from China Suppliers

- Watch out for scammers

You need to watch out the “intermediaries” mixed on the internet. These people buy cheap from the manufacturer and then sell it to you at a higher price. Therefore, you need to pay more attention to the stores on websites like Alibaba, DHgate. The products are not belong to them but belong to the sellers registered on their websites. Although there are some scams when wholesaling online, they are still the best choice to buy from CHINA. Many manufacturers are trustful and reliable. After you ask a few questions, it's easy to sort the scammers

- Don't pay via money transfers

Money transfers is not suitable for small collections. The most important is buyers need to pay first which is not a good choice. You can choose Paypal first. It is currently the world's largest online payment provider, which is safe and convenient, and is an ideal solution for cross-border transactions.

- Insist on getting a tracking number

A tracking number is a must for ecommerce. If the China wholesale suppliers can not track the products, the risk increased.

- Always confirm the exact products before making payment

Although you are always worried when buying online, you have ways to avoid loss. As long as you pay until you confirm the exact products, you will not miss anything.

7 Steps to order from China Directly

If you are finding the most practical and step-by-step detailed guidance on how to order and import products directly from China, then you come to the right place.

There are a lot of businesses from across the world that source their products from China. Such businesses deal in electronics, shoes, clothes, furniture, home furnishings etc. However, ordering directly from China is not as easy as you may think. The whole process may seem confusing for first-timers, costly, and extremely complex.

In today's article, we'll outline 7 practical ways in which you can order from China to minimize the high delivery costs and possibly avoid the delays during delivery.

How to Order from China? 7 Practical Steps to You Should Follow

In this section, we'll show you ways in which you can the process of importing from China more smooth and efficient:

Step 1: Decide On What Products To Sell

In order for you to make sales and actually run a profitable business, you have to choose the right product to sell. Otherwise, if you get the wrong products you will end up wasting your money, time, and resources.

Deciding on what goods you are going to import from China is no easy task. The truth is that the whole process of product research and production is such a huge task. One is required to gather as much information as possible about the goods they plan on importing.

8 Great Tips for Anyone Who Is in the Process of Identifying A Great Product:

- i. For starters, you need to make sure that the goods you intend to import from China are allowed in your country. Check to see if your government has imposed any restrictions on the goods. The goods that come into the country should comply with the set regulations- they should be safe for human use or consumption.
- ii. Do not just settle on a product because everybody else is doing it. Find a product that will solve a lot of people's problems; such has the potential for high profits. The product should add value to your customers in one way or the other.
- iii. The product you choose should light and easy to ship. If you choose a large or heavy product, this means that the shipping costs will be higher. Again, you should make sure that the products are not fragile; these could bring you huge losses in the event of an accident.
- iv. Understand the product's lifecycle. If you feel that the product will soon be phased out, it would be wise if you avoided investing your money there.
- v. Never be scared of competition. If you fear, you will never be able to get in business in the first place. If there are any signs of lack of competition, this simply means that there is no market for the product.

vi. Since now you are aware of what you're supposed to do and what not to do, it's now time to brainstorm. Make a list of all the products that you are interested in selling. You can get your ideas by looking at what other people are selling or by trying to come up with solutions to people's problems.

vii. The next step would be to use online tools to analyze previous data to forecast the future profitability of the product.

viii. Last but not least, always go with a product that you like; something that you're passionate about. The product you finally decide to buy direct from China should be viable and profitable.

But, How to Calculate the Landed Cost?

Once you have finally decided on what product you will buy from China, it's now time to calculate the landed cost. This refers to the rate of duty that you pay when you are importing good. To calculate the landing cost, you will need to first determine the 10-digit tariff classification number for the different products that you're importing. It is very important that you do these calculations before you even place your order. Here are all the costs that you need to add up:

- I. The price of the product
- II. The shipping charges
- III. The clearing charges at customs, the total duty, and tax, as well as the transportation costs to your warehouse

Step 2: Find Suppliers In China

Over the past couple of years, China has quickly become a production superpower, dealing in the manufacture of a large percentage of global consumer products. The reason for this is due to the low cost of manufacturing, easy availability of materials, and the lower cost of labor.

Finding a reliable Chinese supplier can be a pain in the neck, especially if you don't know anyone in China. The business of ordering products from China and re-selling is quite lucrative. It is possible to get a product for just a few dollars, import it and sell it for a 1000% markup. But how does one even get there?

There are a variety of ways in which you can find a highly reputable supplier in China. Let us have a look at some of the most popular ways of finding a wholesale supplier:

● Internet Search/ Google

Google is where we all run to whenever we need to find information on anything. The fastest and easiest way of finding a wholesale supplier on Google is by querying “(the name of the product) + (the phrase wholesale supplier).”

It's worth noting that even after you get your list of suppliers, you still need to put each one of them through a thorough vetting process.

Instead of making a direct query on Google, you could also check some websites. On such market places you can find verified suppliers. Some of these sourcing platforms include:

- i. Alibaba
- ii. Chinabrands
- iii. AliExpress
- iv. SaleHoo
- v. Made-in-China.com
- vi. Global Sources
- vii. Etradeasia.com
- viii. Lightinthebox.com

Most of these platforms feature a “reviews” section where you can check to see whether a supplier is legitimate or not, check their reputations, production capability, as well as the quality of their products.

● Online Supplier Directories

Most of the suppliers that you find in an online directory go through screening before that are added to the list. There are, therefore, some benefits associated with finding a supplier through such directories. They include:

- A lower risk of getting scammed
- You can easily find a specific supplier using predetermined filters
- Faster research and comparison; you get to see the supplier’s price as well as their contact information

● Attending Chinese Trade Shows/Fairs

The greatest advantage of attending trade shows is that you are able to have a one on one talk with your potential suppliers. This makes it so easy for you to ask questions about their values, their production capacity, and their quality-control procedures.

Here are some websites that give regular updates about trade shows and fairs in China:

- Trade Show News Network
- Trade Fair Dates
- ICA Group

Some of the popular Chinese trade fairs are:

i. The Canton Fair

This is the largest trade fair in China and it's held in Guangzhou in South China, near Hong Kong. This fair takes place twice every year; in spring and in fall.

The Canton fair attracts thousands of attendees with a large variety of products. There are about 24,000 exhibitors per session with more than 60,000 booths. This fair features almost every type of industrial product ranging from electronics to automobiles.

ii. The East China Import and Export Commodity Fair

This fair is commonly just referred to as the ECF; it's the largest regional trade fair in China and is held in Shanghai once every year. The cities and provinces in East China come together to sponsor this event which has buyers from more than 100 different countries.

The traders come to exhibit a wide variety of products ranging from art, gifts, clothes, textiles, and consumer goods. This fair is usually the one with the highest turnover. In short, this means that it has the most on-site deals.

iii. Yiwu International Trade Fair

This fair features all types of consumer goods.

The Yiwu Fair targets buyers from all over the world who are interested in buying wholesale products at the lowest prices. There are more 2,500 exhibitor booths that represent factories from all over the country.

iv. Beijing International Auto Show Fair

This fair happens once every two years and features automobiles and accessories. It is the largest automobile show in China.

There are different sellers from virtually every major company in the world. This is the perfect destination for anyone who's looking to buy vehicles, parts, or accessories.

v. The Bauma Fair

This fair features construction machinery and equipment as well as building materials. Just like the Beijing Auto Show Fair, this too happens once every two years. There are more than 200,000 people in attendance from about 150 countries.

So, How To Identify a Good Supplier?

It's always very important that you verify the supplier that you choose. You can start by conducting an online background check of the company and following it up with an onsite visit. Ensure that the supplier has a business license and certifications from their partners and contractors.

Listed below is a list of tips to help you identify a good supplier:

- i. They're always accountable for quality issues that might arise. A quality supplier takes responsibility for his mistakes and works towards addressing it as fast as possible.
- ii. They should be able to manufacture the products you want, exactly how you want them done without overlooking vital considerations.
- iii. They have the expertise and must have manufactured a similar product in the past.
- iv. They have goals that align to yours especially if you're a firm believer in reducing the environmental footprint
- v. They have open channels of communication. To make communication easy, the supplier ensures that there are some staff members who can speak English.

Step 3: Outreach Suppliers

When you have already decided on which supplier to work with, you need to make sure that you're familiar with some terms and abbreviations. These include:

- MOQ - minimum order quantity
- ROI - Return on Investment
- QC - Quality Control
- QMS - Quality Management System
- FOB – Free On Board
- EAR – Export Administration Regulations
- ISF – Importer Security Filing
- CSI – Container Security Initiative

- CIA - Cash In Advance
- CFR - Cost and Freight
- CIF – Cost, Insurance, and Freight
- PI – Proforma Invoice
- DISC – Domestic International Sales Corporation
- EMC – Export Management Company
- FCIA – Foreign Credit Insurance Association
- GATT – General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade
- PEFCO – Private Export Funding Corporation
- SITC – Standard International Trade Classification

Quite Important: How to negotiate with Chinese suppliers

In the quest to find a reputable manufacturer, it would be great if you found a manufacturer who produces goods of the desired specifications. It would be even better if you found a manufacturer with whom you can have a long-lasting business relationship.

To keep a good supplier, you have to start everything off on the right foot. This goes refers to the price negotiations as well. It is advisable that you avoid over-negotiating at all costs. Keep in mind that the manufacturer needs to make money just as much as you do.

Here are some tips to guide you when you get into negotiations with your supplier:

- i. Always compare prices to get the best deals.
- ii. Never over-negotiate since the manufacturers are already dealing with low margins
- iii. Never keep feelings hidden. Always communicate with your supplier

If you insist on paying very little money, the supplier will most likely cut corners and deliver low-quality products. Always keep in mind that quality has a price.

Step 4: Place Your Order

Before placing an actual order with your supplier, it would be wise if you ordered a sample first so that you can get an idea of the packaging quality and get a rough idea of how long shipping will take. You will also be able to calculate the shipping cost estimate by modifying the quantity of the order.

After you have done your math and finally decide on how much inventory you need and how much everything is going to cost, it's now time to place your order. As you place your order, make sure that you meet the minimum order quantity.

Remember – As you order, always consider trade assurance. This is an order protection service whose main aim is to create trust between the buyer and the seller during the time of payment, shipping, and settling quality-related disputes. If the supplier messes up your order as indicated in the contract, you are guaranteed to get your money back.

Tariffs On Chinese Imports

The China Customs assesses and collects tariffs. The tariffs are divided into 6 different categories:

- i. General Rates
- ii. Most-Favored-Nation Rates (MFN)

- iii. Agreement Rates
- iv. Preferential Rates
- v. Tariff Rate Quota Rates
- vi. Provisional Rates

There are a total of 128 products that are mainly targeted by China's retaliatory tariffs. This is in retaliation for the US tariffs on Chinese goods worth $50billion.

Step 5: Arrange For Cargo Transport

There are many costs that you have to incur before the products that you order from China can get to you. Some of the factors that you have to put into consideration while calculating the total shipping costs are the container fees, packaging fees, terminal handling, and broker fees.

As you arrange for cargo transport, always keep in mind that there will be delays due to unavoidable factors like the process of customs declaration.

It is very important that you hire a good customs agent to help with clearing goods at the border. These agents know all the rules and regulations by heart and so they get the job done for you fast, safely, and seamlessly.

Step 6: Track Your Cargo and Prepare For Its Arrival

When you order your goods from China, expect that they will take a couple of weeks to get to you. During the time that the goods are in transit, follow through the whole process so that if anything happened and you were required to track the goods, you would do so with ease.

You should be well aware of the process that the goods go through when they're being cleared by customs.

Step 7: Obtain Shipment

Once the goods arrive from China and get cleared through customs, it's now time to collect them. The goods can either go out and collect the goods or wait for them to be delivered to your doorstep depending on the address you filled in.

The best way to find products that sell is to use a tool that's trusted by over 225,00 Amazon sellers. Click the link below to get started with a free 7-day trial:

Importing from China: Frequently Asked Questions

Is Ordering from China Safe?

The answer to this question is relative. The whole experience is only as safe as you make it. When it comes to making payments, you have to be very careful so that you do not get scammed. Always make sure that you check out and verify the details about any supplier you plan to do business with.

Should I Export from the USA to China?

Lately, the US and Chinese governments have been in a row over who has greater power over the other. The dispute has drastically affected bilateral trade between these two countries.

The US-China trading problem has resulted in regulatory changes that have led there to be a trade surplus for both countries. Trade signing deals are underway to better the current situation and make sure that a major bilateral crisis does not occur. So traders are encouraged to export from the USA to China.

Do I Have to Pay Import Tax from China?

In addition to the normal tariff duties, governments require that both foreign and domestic enterprises pay value-added taxes (VAT) and business taxes. It is therefore very important that one understands how to calculate import duties, custom fees, and other taxes when importing goods from China.

However, note that you don't pay import tax on some electronic devices such as laptops.

The formula for calculating tax is:
17% (CIF+ Duty+ Consumption Tax)

Consumption Tax ranges between 1% and 45%; it's only charged on imports such as cars, petroleum, and alcohol.

Conclusion

Finding a good supplier is one of the toughest steps when you wish to order from China. Find one who is easy to work with and one who gives the best quality product. Also, remember that the information that we have provided in this article is for general purposes only. Always go the extra mile and perform a background check on your potential supplier.

15 Best Chinese Trading Companies to Skyrocket your Profits for Amazon FBA

In this article, I will list the best Chinese trading companies that will boost your sales without spending a penny on marketing.

To make better use of trading companies, I will help you find the most suitable Chinese trading company to partner with.

What is a Trading Company?

A trading company is a firm that connects buyers and sellers within the same country or different countries. Trading companies can also be referred to as middlemen between manufacturers and wholesale suppliers/retailers.

Trading companies are experts in import and export rules, regulations and procedures. To maximize their sales, they deal with multiple manufacturing companies. They establish their own marketing networks by identifying products and negotiate with the manufacturers and suppliers.

For the trading companies to create a large pool of China trading partners, they employ sales agents in both domestic and foreign markets to solicit for orders as well as promote their brands.

Why You Should Buy From Chinese Trading Companies?

Buying from Chinese trading companies has numerous advantages. Most wholesale suppliers and retailers do not even know the manufactures because the trading companies are on their doors on a daily basis to monitor the movement of their supplied products.

Here are many other reasons as to why you should buy from them:

- i. Trading companies do understand customers better than the manufactures and are therefore more likely to sell more suitable products for that region.
- ii. They have better customer service compared to the factories. Establishing markets is challenging and they, therefore, better service their customers with caution.
- iii. Most Chinese trading companies to sell for small manufacturers not like to have the expertise and capacity to export their products. Most of these manufacturers' products are usually low priced an advantage directly passed to you.
- iv. Some factories have a very high set minimum order quantity requirement not affordable to small scale buyers. This is simplified by the trading companies who buy in large quantities and sell according to the customers' requirements.
- v. Trading companies do promote items they supply which factories don't. For them to ensure their products sell, it's upon them to put every effort to promote their products and prove themselves worthy to the customers.

7 Things to Know Before Starting an Amazon FBA Business

<https://www.chinabrands.com/dropshipping/category-amazon-dropshipping-18.html>

If you have been living under the rock, then you must have missed how shops have been moving over to the internet. Rapidly, but very surely, the shops that keep on popping up in the internet number hundreds. However, not for a lack of reason because over the past years, there has been a steady increase in the number of people who are getting more than enough income to support themselves just by having an e-commerce website.

By starting an Amazon FBA business, you give yourself a chance to sell products as if like a large company without the hassle of being one. That means they will store your products, house them, and fulfill every order made by the consumer while at the same time, brand your products as if you are the one doing all the work. All you have to do is continuously expand your name, and find other products that you can bring under your wing.

The Positives

The Amazon FBA business plan is already sounding good from the introduction alone. However, it is understandable if everyone is still a little bit apprehensive. However, sometimes, everyone only needs a little push to be convinced to at least try it out.

Having said that, let us start convincing you by presenting the benefits that starting an Amazon FBA business has.

1. Effortless Operation

If you had a fair share of order fulfillment in the past, then you should be aware of how time-consuming it is. The Amazon FBA business plan allows you to outsource these to them minimizing risks with highly trained staff who knows what they are doing.

2. Slashed Shipping Prices

Having the Amazon name attached to your brand opens up possibilities. For example, the company has long established a good working relationship with shipping companies. This is why they always get good discounts which can be applied to your products if you are starting an Amazon FBA business.

In addition, Prime members of Amazon's subscription gives them an added bonus of having their products delivered in two day's time improving your reputation and results in improved sales.

3. Returns

This is a normal occurrence in the daily operation of any retail store, regardless, if it is online and with that, Amazon offers to manage this along with other customer service issues such as inquiries, labels, and reverse logistics. However, it does not come for free. It will cost some money, but it is worth it considering how much hassle they took away from you.

4. Storage Space is Not a Problem

Amazon does not care if you send as little as one product to their warehouse. As long as it is a product that is going to be sold, they will take it. Moreover, those who are consistent with their stocks can be given the benefit of unlimited storage space, although, there was none set to begin with.

5. Sell Anywhere

The Amazon FBA business plan gives you the opportunity to sell anywhere online. This is because they have a wide reach within the internet. At the end of the day, it will still be Amazon who will fulfill the orders.

Looking at the positives that starting an Amazon FBA business provides, no one would wonder why Amazon continues to be one of the strongest companies that make millions online.

However, as it is sounding too good to be true, using Amazon FBA as your partner in your e-commerce website has its downsides, which we will also go through one by one.

The Downsides

Nothing is ever too good to be true, and that even a company as reliable as Amazon do make mistakes and somewhere lies faults.

1. It Will Cost You

Like any service, starting an Amazon FBA business will cost you. A price needs to be paid and this is mainly for the storage that they provide your products. That is why, when you put a tag on your products, take this into consideration to ensure profits ever after the fact. On the other hand, they normally do not cost you a lot. You should only be concerned if it remains unsold for more than six months. That is when it will truly hurt you.

2. Returns Might Be Frequent

This is due to how easy it is to process a return. Who is to blame, however, it remains uncertain.

3. Strict Product Preparation

Amazon holds its partners to the high standards that it has set for itself. That is why they have specific instructions as to how your products are to be packed and labeled before being sent over to them for storage and delivery. It will take time if you are only starting an Amazon FBA business, but you will get used to it.

4. Inventory Can be Difficult

Since your products are not always readily seen, keeping track as to how much more you have available. The only way to solve this is to regularly be in contact as to which warehouse your products are being held, but that is a hassle you might not want considering all the promise of hassle-free transactions.

5. Sales Tax Can be Peculiar

This is most troublesome in the United States because every state has different sales tax. The question now becomes whether the sales tax you collect will be based only as to where your business is located, or should it be for every state that Amazon operates, and considering how they shuffle inventory among different warehouses now and again, there is never a clear answer as to how this is regulated.

6. Mixing Products

The Amazon FBA business plan gives you the option of mixing similar products from different sellers in one, maybe to save space. Unfortunately, you run the risk of mixing your products with counterfeit items that might be accidentally shipped to your consumers. Luckily, this is optional. So, if anything does happen, it would then be on your shoulders.

Amazon is reliable, and you should know because you have been using it yourself. However, there is never a perfect entity and small faults such as this should be forgiven. At the end of the day, it is your decision knowing fully well what the disadvantages are.

How To Package Goods For Amazon FBA

What's Amazon FBA?

A fulfillment service offered by Amazon wherein they store and ship your goods for you.

Why Is Packaging Important?

Because Amazon will reject shipments that aren't correctly packaged and labelled.

Individual Products

Before they even get into their cartons and are palletised, goods have to be packaged individually.

- All individual SKU items must be contained in the same packaging, if you're selling a multi-set of a product (for example, book or DVD sets).
- Each shippable unit must have a visible barcode.
- If your goods are sharp, hazardous or damage prone, they need additional protective packaging.

- When labeling (barcodes) make sure:
 - You've placed the label on a flat surface.
 - All barcodes aside from your own are covered.
 - The labels are printed in high-enough quality that they won't smear or fade.

Cartons

Individual goods have to be packaged into cartons before cartons are palletised.

- Cartons on pallets should not exceed 30 kg.
- Individual cartons weighing between 15 kg and 30 kg must be marked "Heavy Package" (viewable from both the top and sides of each heavy-weight container).

Pallets

Cartons then need to be loaded onto pallets. This is for easier transportation.

- Each pallet must be labelled with the Vendor Name, To and From address, PO numbers, Number of cartons, and Pallet # of _____ pallets.
- All pallets must contain like items.
- All pallets must be stretch-wrapped in clear plastic.
- The pallets used four-way access pallets of 1,200 mm x 1,000 mm.
- Broken or damaged pallets are not acceptable.
- For single pallets, the pallet height must not exceed 1.8 m.
- The total weight of a pallet must not exceed 1,000 kg.
- Merchandise must not overhang the pallet edge by more than 25 mm.

AMAZON FBA

HOW TO MEET THE PACKAGING REQUIREMENTS

LET'S GUIDE YOU THROUGH!

Individual products (in packaging) need to be labelled with a barcode.

For single pallets, the pallet height must be under 1.8m. For double stacked pallets, the height must not exceed 3m.

When packaging onto a pallet, instead of piling your goods on top each other, pile them so that they overlap each other for security.

All carton deliveries that are half a carton or more need to be palletised.

The heaviest cartons allowed are 30kg.

Cartons from 15-30kg must be labelled with "heavy-weight" in positions that can be seen from top down and side view.

All pallets must be shrink wrapped using clear plastic wrap.

Each box needs to be limited to one shipping ID and, if possible, pallets should contain similar products.

Things To Know Before Starting An Amazon FBA Business

At the end of the day, when you are starting an Amazon FBA business, it is still a business, regardless of where you put up your platform. That is why, going in, it is vital that you have certain key elements that should be kept at the back of your mind.

1. Know the Competition

Research is always important. However, this is not so you can one-up the more established e-commerce shops. Instead, this is to learn what are the top selling products currently in the market. By knowing that, you will be able to potentially know what to sell when starting an Amazon FBA business.

2. Focus on Your Copywriting First

This is where you focus on the keywords you are going to use. It can be easily done by knowing how most individuals search for your products. Using the common keywords helps increase your ranking in the search engine because just like Google, Amazon is also a search engine.

3. Good Picture is Worth a Thousand Words

As an e-commerce site, you need to present your products the best way possible. Remember that your customers cannot hold the product. The pictures you posted are all they have, and that is why you need to make the most of it. Use only those that showcase your product in the best way possible.

4. Set Up Best Pricing Strategy

How you ultimately do this will depend on how many items you have on sale especially when you consider how often pricing in Amazon constantly changes. Most sellers employ the help of a software that automates the process especially as their inventory increases.

5. Get Positive Product Review

This is the online version of word of mouth, and the effect it has is just further proof of how powerful this is as a marketing tool because every person will always be drawn to those who are being talked about positively.

6. An Automated Follow-Up E-mail Sequence

This is vital as you scale up in your business because it comes to a point when you cannot personally respond to every e-mail sent to you. Basically, if you reach a time when you start doing this, then that means you are slowly becoming successful.

7. Find a Supplier Shipping to Amazon FBA Business

When starting an Amazon FBA business, this should be one of your priorities. Not only should they cater to Amazon FBA shops, but it should always be reliable to have products necessary, if not, they should be efficient enough to let you know. This is where you go full circle once again going back to in-depth research.

You Can Start With ChinaBrands

<https://www.ChinaBrands.com>

Speaking of suppliers, if you still have not found any to help you make money with Amazon FBA, then you might want to start your search with ChinaBrands, and maybe after, you will not be looking anywhere else.

So, ChinaBrands is a fairly new DropShipper that has recently gained popularity among e-commerce website vendors. Their products can be bought extremely cheap and have the reputation to be very durable and of high quality.

The company itself is very reliable, and with added support year round, you do not have to do much to earn a profit. In fact, they promise that you will only be doing 20% of the work needed to make a profit. With so much time in your hands, you can use it to be more productive such as continuous research and developing a strong SEO while ensuring that you can support your customers anytime they need it, and not only at your convenience. Although, ChinaBrands even take up this task.

In addition, they take away the hassle of arranging for delivery because they can arrange the delivery for you. Imagine that benefit, and the added benefits of the Amazon name, that should be a deal worthy to be considered.

If you are strongly considering to have them as your supplier, you will find that their website is quite easy to maneuver and straightforward. They have 19 categories to choose from, and many more subcategories for you to choose from. They also have products on sale almost all the time giving your money much more as you sell them.

At the end of the day, there are many options available for you. ChinaBrands is just one of them. However, if you are starting an Amazon FBA business, this is one supplier that you should strongly take into consideration.

In order to succeed in the e-commerce industry, one should always have a reliable partner. Amazon is a company that has been relied upon by many even before the boom of this money making machine. If you cannot trust Amazon, who else can you trust.

12 Ways Of Sourcing Products For Amazon FBA

Are you an aspiring Amazon FBA seller wondering how to source for amazon fba products? Or perhaps you are already started and looking for more ways to supplement your current inventory?

You've come to the right place. In this article, we exhaust the multiple ways to source products for Amazon FBA in 2019 alongside helpful tips to follow while at it.

How To Source Products To Sell On Amazon FBA

1. Drop shipping suppliers

If you want to eliminate the need to purchase products upfront, handle, store them and all the logistics of fulfilling orders, a dropshipping supplier is your best bet.

When you work with them, they purchase products from the manufacturers and stores them in their warehouses. Once an order is placed, they package and ship it directly to the Amazon FBA warehouses. You will typically be a middle man in this kind of arrangement.

Two of the biggest challenges sourcing from this kind of suppliers is quality issues and stock out. Since you do not keep inventory, your customers may actually be receiving substandard goods. Also, items may actually go out of stock just when you have received a sale(s) leading to cancellation.

We highly recommend ChinaBrands as a dropshipping supplier if you are to mitigate these two issues. They have an efficient quality control team that ensures whatever leaves the manufacturers factories is of stellar quality. They also have an automated stock management system.

2. Wholesale suppliers

Wholesale suppliers are popular sources for amazon fba sourcing. Here, you simply buy large quantities at discounted rates for resale at a profit. Usually, once you've established a good business relationship, the more you buy, the greater the discounts you can negotiate and even better payment terms and other perks.

There are two factors to consider when purchasing from wholesale suppliers. One is to have the necessary permissions to resell branded products. Failure to which you risk your store/account being pulled down for copyrights infringement.

The other thing is to conduct your market research really well to avoid buying too much bulk and ending up with dead stock. Whatever you supplier must match the demand in numbers. Always start with small quantities if unsure of the market.

3. B2B online marketplace

E-commerce business owners frequently purchase products for their online stores from B2B marketplaces most especially Amazon sellers. China based marketplaces are particularly a favorite primarily because of their low prices and thus higher profit margins. There's also a wide variety of goods, you can actually get everything you need from one supplier; how convenient.

ChinaBrand, DHgate and Global sources would be a good place to start especially for small businesses. Alibaba is also a great B2B marketplace, the largest one actually. Only that it rarely works for small businesses and has fairly high MOQ. It is ideal for more established sellers.

4. Online wholesale directory

Another place to source for Amazon FBA products would be through online wholesale directories. You can browse through hundreds of suppliers to find one that has the exact products you need at the right price.

To avoid getting scammed, use only reputable online directories that certify suppliers before listing them. Salehoo and Worldwide brands are good examples. Don't forget to read reviews as well as ratings from previous and existing customers.

5. Manufacturer

Another option is to source directly from a manufacturer. This method of sourcing is ideal for businesses looking to sell unique product ideas or in need of customization. For lower cost per unit, the MOQ is definitely very high to land this kind of a direct deal with the manufacturer making it ideal for huge firms.

It is also accompanied by a lot of policy and business document requirements. If you are a small seller, you will probably be directed to their distributor or wholesalers unless the manufacturer is small.

6. Sourcing agent

There are many sourcing agent websites where you can get help with your sourcing needs for amazon fba. What these agents do is research and find you the most suitable suppliers or manufacturers for the line of wares you needs, negotiate the price, shipping and other logistics on your behalf for a commission.

The main problem with using a sourcing agent is that you may not land the best quality, prices or rates since some of them are only keen on making a commission and not truly helping you find the best deal for your business.

7. Sourcing software/tools

With sourcing software and tools, online sourcing for Amazon FBA (Fulfilled By Amazon) has never been easier. There's a myriad of them each with a special function and you can combine two or more for efficient and faster results. They can quickly pull analytic data for you from Amazon and other third party sellers.

This data could be on the most profitable products or popular ones and where to find them. The tools can also make price comparisons, calculate expected profit margins, how many you items you need to stock and much more. Jungle scout, Keepa, Camelcamelcamel, Amazon FBA calculator are a few examples.

8. Auctions and Thrift Stores

Auctions and thrift stores are among places where you can find high quality products for a fraction of the normal retail price. These are mostly clearance items, overstocks, donated wares and inventory from closed down businesses. The price is normally very low to get sell off the items quickly.

Caution must however be exercised when buying from these outlets. Always check for broken, malfunction or defective products which are common. Also, ensure the market will be willing to make a purchase at the price after adding your fulfillment costs and margin.

9. Liquidation/Surplus Store

Like auction and thrift stores, liquidation and surplus stores are similarly great establishments to find inventory at throw away prices. This is usually stock from liquidated stores closing down out of business bankrupt shelf pulls, returns and clearance sales.

Here, you also have to do a thorough physical inspection even if selling online just to be ascertain that you are getting valuable products in good saleable condition. If not careful you may end up with outdated or out of season goods that nobody is willing to pay so much for.

10. Retail Arbitrage

Have you ever noticed crazy discounts, hot deals and huge clearance sales displayed at your local shopping mall? Well, like many other sellers, you can take advantage of the offers to source for products by buying the discounted merchandise for resale. This works well especially with collectibles and limited editions. So the next time you are out doing your own shopping, it is good to keep an eye on such opportunities.

11. Online Arbitrage

Online arbitration follows the same model as retail arbitrage; only difference is the platform. While retail arbitrage is on physical stores, online arbitrage is on online shopping websites. You will purchase low priced products from one online site and sell them on Amazon at a higher price tag for a profit. Look out for goods on Sale, sold at discounted rates and from cash back sites for the low prices you seek. Redeeming products using reward point, coupons or gift cards for resell is another alternative.

This method of product sourcing is highly competitive and restocking may also be a problem because such deals are seasonal and run for short time periods. Subsequent purchases after the time lapse are priced normally.

12. Virtual Assistants

Not up to the task of online sourcing for amazon fba? You could hire a virtual assistance to undertake the process of product sourcing for you using any of the methods or simply do the research and provide you with the facts, figures and recommendations.

Pro Tips of Amazon Product Sourcing

Some ways of sourcing products take a lot more time, cost and effort to prepare the products than others. The pertinent question to ask yourself is, is it worth it?

Consider the cost of buying and shipping, time spent searching for suppliers, cleaning, packing, sorting, rebranding, coordinating logistics among other activities when making a selection.

Sometimes, the end profit is not worth all this trouble. In which case, it is better to let a dropshipper supplier do the hardwork for you and use the freed up time marketing your wares.

Each way has its advantages and disadvantages so weigh your options carefully. Some sourcing methods do well for beginners others are best left for established brands. It doesn't hurt to supplement one supply method with another.

Always start small. Buy in small batches. This way you can gauge the effectiveness of your supplier, avoid overstocking and also learn the market.

Quality is of utmost importance. Be sure to always inspect and test what you intend to sell for amazon fba. If you don't handle the goods physically, at least have some samples sent your way by the supplier.

Make use of technology by investing in Amazon FBA software and automation of processes. You will appreciate how much more easier e-commerce will become.

Networking is crucial be it with thrift store staff, your suppliers, employees of shipping companies and anyone relevant to your business. There is always something new to learn, important information, business secrets and tips to pass.

Final Thought

Depending on what business stage you are in and resources at hand, sourcing for Amazon FBA may work with a particular or a combination of methods. Do not be afraid to try out something different until you find what actually works for you.

How To Become An Amazon FBA Seller In 5 Easy Steps

Amazon is the world's undisputed ecommerce platform giant with over 300 million buyer accounts and another 2 million plus seller accounts. There's no doubt business is good over there, the more reason Amazon FBA program is growing in popularity amongst sellers who want to build a solid brand.

What is FBA?

In case you are wondering, it is the initials for Fulfilment By Amazon, a program launched by Amazon to fulfill orders on behalf of sellers. As an Amazon FBA seller, you will simply send over your items to Amazon where they get stored in their warehouses. Once orders are placed, they will pack, and ship the purchased products to buyers as well as handle any returns and refunds. All this is of course at a fee.

You might be wondering, why FBA, when I can self fulfill (or use another channel)? Well, besides being the largest fulfillment network with unbeatable prospects, there are other benefits that make this program more lucrative.

- ü Everything that is tedious, tiresome and time consuming is handled for you. From storage packaging, shipping, logistics and management of returns.
- ü You get discounted shipping rates, something to consider if you intend to widen your profit margins.

- ü They will handle the customer service aspect for you, with excellent 24/7 support for your clients, a win for your business reputation.
- ü Unlimited storage. You can send one item or 2 whole trucks; space will never be a problem.
- ü Fast shipping with a worldwide reach.
- ü Enjoy multi-channel order fulfilment service where products purchased through other platforms other than Amazon can still be fulfilled by FBA.

You must now probably be wondering, how do I get started? Highlighted next are a few guidelines to help you become an Amazon FBA seller.

5 Steps To Become An Amazon FBA Seller

1. Sign up

Do you already have an Amazon seller account? If not, the initial step is to open one. You will find two options to sign up. As an individual for $0.99 per item you sell, or, as a professional to access more categories and features for a flat fee of $39.99 a month regardless number of items sold. After signing up (or if you already had an existing seller account), add FBA to your account.

If new to this kind of selling, go for the individual plan. You do not have to pay any upfront fees until the first item is sold. It helps you test waters first, learn the ropes and get comfortable. You can always switch later after growth.

2. Stock up

Gather all the items you intend to sell and pack them in boxes. These could be unused household or office items and equipment, homemade or handcrafted stuff, or new stock from your manufacturer or supplier.

Don't have physical stock with you? No worries. You can alternatively shop for cheap products online from a supplier dropshipper and have them directly delivered to the Amazon FBA warehouses.

Remember to sell only highly profitable products given the stiff competition on such a humongous marketplace and also costs associated with order fulfillment and storage. You might want to utilize the Amazon FBA revenue calculator to find out the profitability of products you intend to sell.

If you were already an Amazon seller before, you can also change already existing stock on amazon to be fulfilled by FBA from the manage inventory page.

3. Create listings

The next step is to create a catalog of what you offer. To start listing, go to Amazon Seller Central and click on inventory menu. Click on Add listing and start creating a listing for the first product. Fill in the title, descriptions and other details. Create a new box for every other item.

If you have an inventory management software, you do not have to list manually. There's an alternative to integrate it to Amazon API.

Code your boxes for easy identification. If not familiar with codes, search for similar items on Amazon search bar and click on sell your, the box will come coded.

Check the FBA box and switch to case packed items mode. In this mode similar items packed together in the same case can be tracked separately.

4. Get items ready for shipping

Your package can only be shipped with Amazon FBA labeling on it. After completing your listings, click on Work on shipping. You will find three options, Small parcel delivery (SPD), Less truck load (LTL) and full truck load (FTL). Unless doing a bulky shipment, SPD is recommended for boxes weighing 150lbs or less.

After selecting one, create labels for your parcels. Then , select UPS as your carrier. UPS has partnered with Amazon to offer shipping rate discounts. You may also opt for direct delivery by Amazon logistics.

Print the relevant documents which would be the packing slips and shipping labels to be affixed on the parcels.

Have the packages weighed either at home or the UPS or other delivery center and shipped to Amazon warehouse. You as the seller are responsible for this shipping fee to the destination.

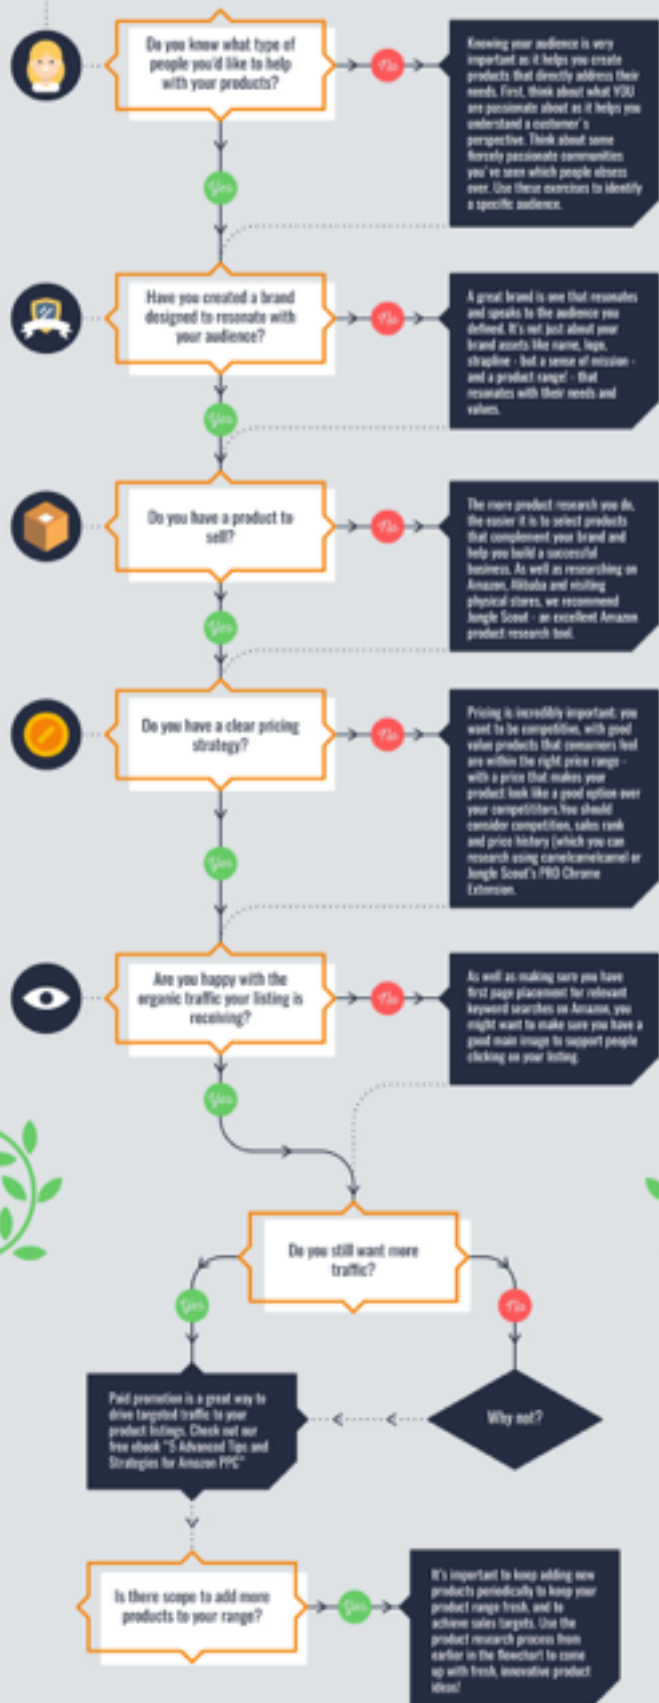

5. Get paid

Now you can just market and advertise your goods, wait for those orders to come in, track the shipments, unpacked goods and inventory levels. Amazon accepts payments of fulfilled orders and deposits the money in your bank account directly every two weeks.

How To Get Merchandise From Supplier To Amazon FBA Warehouse

Having your products delivered directly from a supplier to Amazon FBA warehouses is one of the smartest moves you can make to save yourself the hassle of handling physical stock and avoid unnecessary transport and storage costs.

This is only made possible by partnering with a supplier DropShipper with FBA services. You can shop for products from them, integrate with your Amazon FBA account, have them transport the goods to the FBA warehouse on your behalf. ChinaBrands is highly recommended for this service for a variety of reasons.

Why ChinaBrands?

<https://www.ChinaBrands.com>

For starters, as a member, you will get access to tens of thousands of cheap products that are hot and profitable. Considering the many costs of FBA, you want the lowest prices you can get to make a good gain.

You can integrate your account seamlessly to Amazon. This means you can pick products and have them reflect in your store instantly. If you also sell on Ebay, Shopify or other platforms, the process is pretty much simple as everything is integrated and in sync.

With its large business networks, ChinaBrands negotiates customs and shipping rates for its members to ensure you incur the lowest transportation costs. You have over 27 shipping alternatives.

Once ordered, the goods will be packed, labeled and even undergo customization services if desired.

Amazon FBA Pricing

Before choosing to fulfill your orders via Amazon FBA, it is important to understand the total cost which many people usually do not know upfront. There are multiple costs associated with FBA which should be taken into account prior to commitment to gauge the profitability of this method.

1. Order fulfillment fee which is dependent on your chosen plan.
2. Handling fees charged every time Amazon staff handle your goods to or from the warehouse.
3. 15% of total sales is also deducted.
4. Storage fees for prolonged stay usually 6 months to 1 year and over.

How About Payment In Fulfillment By Amazon? How Does It Work?

Amazon accepts payment for sellers products on their behalf. After every two weeks, the amount of total sales made less the fulfillment costs is debited directly into vendor's bank account.

5 things you need if your starting an FBA

Amazon Seller App

This is your very first app you will be using to scan for items when doing your retail arbitrage. The good thing about it is that it is 100% free! The tool allows you to check prices just by scanning and giving you estimates for selling as a merchant or as a FBA seller. This is the best app to let you try out Amazon FBA without spending money yet. It will also determine whether this retail arbitrage is for you or not.

Profit Bandit

$15/month

It does a slightly better job than the Amazon Seller App as it already has preset filters to automatically give you the profit/loss for a specific item. It can also show collectible items (useful for used games). Another perk of Profit Bandit is that you can also do research within the app to make your buying decision by visiting other sites like camelcamelcamel and eBay.

CamelCamelCamel

This is probably one of the most useful tools for any Amazon FBA seller. It provides price tracking for Amazon products, historical price charts, price drops, popular products, sales rank, community deals and more!

Laser Printer

This is pretty much a given if you are starting out. This is needed for printing labels if you don't want to use an ink jet printer, which sometimes cost the labels to smear and you won't be able to scan it.

Scotty Peelers

These are very useful in removing price tags from any item. Most of the time when you go source for inventory, you will find items that often have sticker tags. Using your hands isn't the most effective way, so the Scotty Peelers will come in handy here.

Other Important Things To Know About FBA

Sales tax

Nonetheless, when it comes to FBA, it gets really confusing.

This is because there are hundreds of warehouses with goods moving around from one state to another. It is pretty much difficult if not impossible to know which state you sold to. While taxes on online sales is not too established and strictly reinforced, compliance could be an issue in future when it is.

ROI

Given the high costs of having your orders fulfilled by Amazon, taking a critical look at your ROI is important to avoid meagre returns or losses altogether. The question is, after factoring all the expenses from shipping to fulfillment fees, how much are your returns?

As a start-up, It is recommended to go with the 3 times rule. Your total price should consist one third the buying price, one third the expenses and one third the profit. Ideally, you should price an item you purchased for $10 at $30 and so on.

Competition

There are about 2 million sellers on Amazon thanks to its popularity. This means competition is stiffer than anywhere else. More so, when you have to compete with Amazon itself as a merchant. Be sure to choose your niche carefully and also carry out a price research and comparisons before making a decision.

Conclusion

There are many unmatched benefits that one can derive from being an Amazon FBA seller. While its few shortcomings cannot be ignored, they can be mitigated and it is worth giving this giant marketplace a try.

At the same time, you can always opt to have ChinaBrands ship the products directly to the amazon FBA warehouse cheaply and securely.

Do you look forward to starting an amazon FBA (Fulfilled By Amazon) business? You can become an amazon FBA seller from today.

Why Selling on Amazon can Get You Rich

Amazon is the number one global and influential marketplace in the eCommerce industry. Millions of merchants and sellers have been selling and reselling on amazon for a long time.

Amazon has over 310 million active customer base which is indeed huge compared to eBay which gets around 80 million. Amazon marketplace sells over 356 million products every year. Not only US, but amazon has been a major part of online shopping for people from more than 60 countries. These statistics show that selling on Amazon can be very lucrative.

What Is the Reseller Model on Amazon?

Well we have seen above the reason of why you must sell on amazon. We will now look into the reseller model on amazon and how we can resell products for profits. There are 2 types of resellers for amazon resale business.

→ Reseller with no exclusive sourcing relationship

Reseller with no exclusive sourcing relationship

The reseller who has no exclusive sourcing relationship with its supplier or distributor or wholesaler could face a lot of challenges reselling on amazon. The only way to have a better share of sales from amazon is if he has a significant pricing advantage over the competitors.

But one must be very clear that this pricing race can eventually lower the margins to such an extent that it is pointless to sell such a product for profit. So resellers must bear in mind to sell products which are not readily available or bundling products with complimentary items to make it appealing to consumers.

Reseller with exclusive sourcing relationship

The principle of having exclusive sourcing relationship with wholesale manufacturers makes a lot of sense to resellers. And if the reseller negotiates from specific brand and get control on their distribution, it can prevent unauthorized and gray market sellers from amazon, thus cutting the competition. This can help in quickly getting into the buy box which in turn offers greater visibility and more sales.

Rather than selling to retailers and resellers on wholesale profits some brands are now more interested to sell direct to consumers with the help of Amazon FBA.

So there are some challenges which resellers face while selling their products on retail on their amazon store.

4 Must Know Consideration of Reselling on Amazon

While selling items on amazon you might feel some things might not be right for your business. We are listing a few things you need to consider before you start your reselling business on amazon.

★ Anyone can list items on sale

Selling on amazon is legal and anyone can sign up as Amazon seller account and list items, lot of authorized resellers face difficulties reselling products on amazon. If a brand does not have a very strict control on their distribution, then you might see the same product listed from a lot of different sellers. This creates an unwanted competition for that product.

Sellers then start racing for lowest pricing for products and ignoring their contract with supplier or brand of suggested retail pricing.

★ Amazon own marketplace rules

As mentioned, Amazon is currently the biggest leader in online retail eCommerce. So they have the complete consumers data and their possible buying behaviour. They use the data to private label and sell the same products in Amazon retail. This is the reason Amazon retail will almost always beat the price of any seller and win the Buy Box easily thus getting majority of sales chunk.

Also the Amazon retail has complexed pricing structure with the help of which it can easily offer lowest prices for any product they want thus squeezing other sellers from any profitable margin to sell. The bottom line is that competing directly with amazon retail products is a stupid idea and you will not be able to survive in the long run.

★ Amazon promotes FBA

FBA is actually Fulfillment by Amazon and Amazon wants all 3rd party sellers to use Amazon FBA. In this, sellers put their products in Amazon designated warehouses and whenever you receive the order, Amazon ships the product to your customer directly from warehouse even if the seller has the capability to fulfill orders themselves.

Amazon claims that in this way it is able to ensure the highest quality and quick logistics solution and consistent shopping experience to its customers. They also showcase a badge of Amazon Prime to sellers using FBA with which sellers have seen improved and better conversions.

★ Barrier between seller and buyer

Regardless of the fact that amazon is a cool eCommerce platform to help buyer and sellers, it also creates a barrier between them. You never own the customers you are selling your products to. When a seller on amazon gets an order, he is not allowed to own the customer or build any long term relationship with them by remarketing those customers. Every sale is considered to be a one time transaction only.

Whenever a customer buys a product from your amazon store he will only remember that he bought from Amazon not any 3rd party seller. So regardless of what type of service you provide you can not own the consumer.

5 Actionable Tips to Make Money on Amazon

We see that there are a lot of merchants on amazon who are doing six figures income but there are other sellers who can't even make a few hundred dollars. To help you with that we would like to give you a few tips on how you can start and make money reselling items on amazon.

1. Check Seller Central Portal Frequently

The no.1 tip is to check the seller central portal regularly for any customer queries, new orders, returns or anything. Amazon pays detailed attention to its customers and satisfaction of their customers at earliest is the best thing you can do to grow your business.

Provide the best customer service to amazon customers, ship the orders timely and confirm shipped when done. The bottom line is do whatever you can to make your customer happy especially if you are a new seller.

2. Remain updated with Inventory levels

While reselling on amazon you must note that you must have adequate amount of stock and inventory present for amazon customers. Keep track of inventory at all times as showing product out of stock would decrease your rankings and thus sales. It also sends buyers a negative impact for your store.

Some wholesale suppliers have also live stock management features for handling this issue. Apart from that you also need to keep revisiting your pricing for the products as most shoppers like to choose the lowest priced deals. Update your listings regularly for the price to keep attracting buyers to your listings and remain in the buy box.

3. Win the Amazon Buy Box

Amazon offers multiple sellers to sell the same product. The one with the lowest price offer gets the most exposure in the form of “Buy box”. By getting buy box the seller is considered to be the default seller for any product thus huge sales coming on the way. To win the buy box sweet spot, you need to work competitively on your pricing, product availability, fulfillment method and highly efficient customer satisfaction.

So keep on optimizing your amazon listing and with time you would understand how Amazon ranks each product and how you can get good sales and a sustainable online business reselling on amazon.

4. Start small and then Expand

Another useful tip to drive sales from your amazon store is to start from either 1 or 2 SKUs and then slowly start expanding. In this way you easily get the grab of the market and learn in the meantime how amazon search algorithm works. After that you can keep adding more and more products and keep scaling for more sales and more profits.

Also rather than using fulfillment by merchant use Amazon FBA. This will get you FBA Amazon Prime batch to boost sales.

5. Build a 5 star feedback rating

Getting a strong and positive customer feedback is the key to surviving and keep getting sales on amazon. This is only possible if the dropship supplier you choose is honest, provides quality products and cares for your business. ChinaBrands is a reliable, trusted chinese wholesale and dropship supplier which offers quick amazon sellers integration. Hundred thousand merchants have been running their businesses successfully with the help of ChinaBrands. Returns and regular complaints from customers can even get your amazon account suspended.

In order to get 5 star rating, describe your products accurately and don't fake anything. Try to add original product images so they are not shocked when they see the product. Ship products as soon as order is received and listen carefully and reply promptly to the customers.

How to Buy and Resell on Amazon

Buying products from Amazon and selling again for profit on Amazon is something called Amazon retail arbitrage. This is quite a new and exciting thing for sellers to test. Look for amazon price drops of 70 to 90% off and buy the items and stock, you can later sell them for the original price when it gets off sale.

Another way for that is to look for bundles of 12 pcs or more. You can buy those bundle packs and sell them for quite a good price either alone or in packs of 3. These types of tricks can help you a lot to earn quick money while doing amazon retail arbitrage.

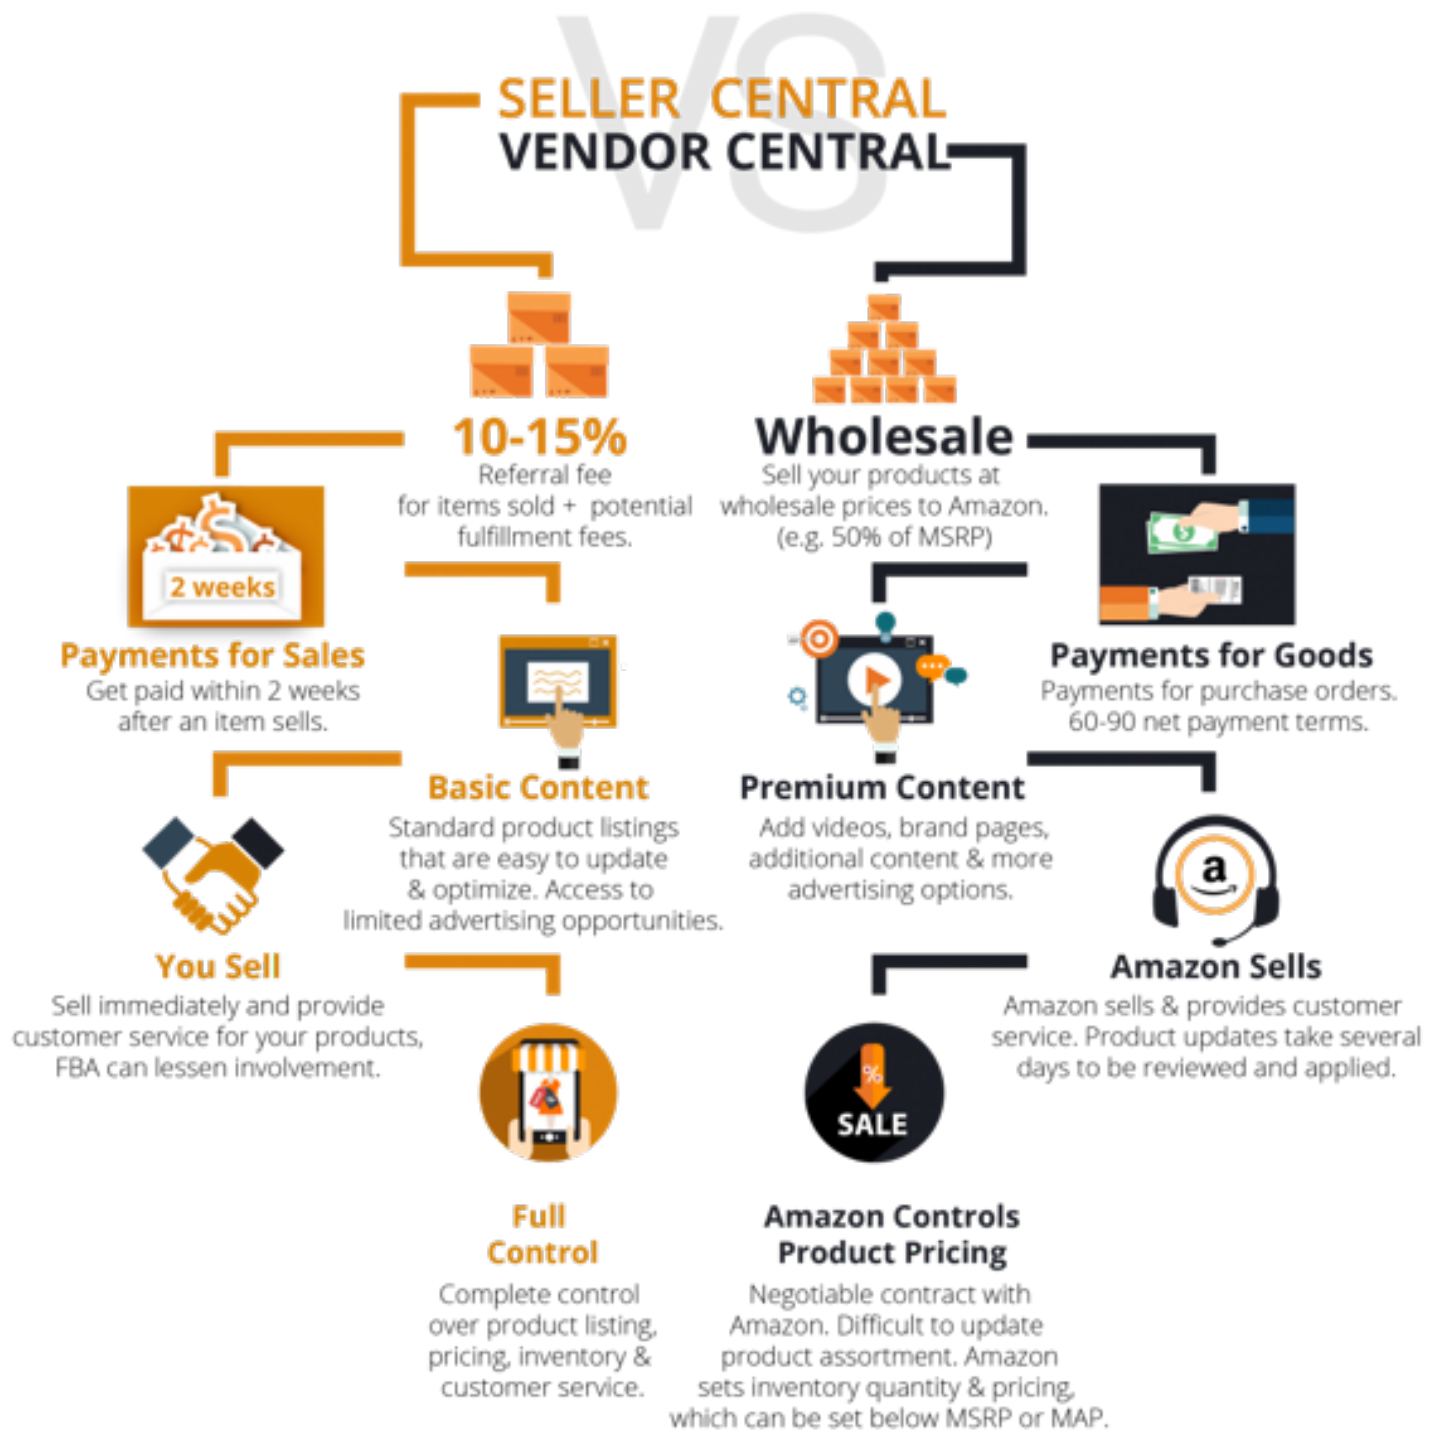

To resell on Amazon you need to either

- Sell items with proven success rate but high competition
- Sell items with no proven success and low competition

So first of all we need to register at Amazon seller central and then think of our sourcing place and then comes in selling of products.

Create Amazon seller account to sell and resell products

Before you start creating an amazon seller account you need to be aware that there are 2 types of seller accounts Individual and Professional. If you sell less than 40 items per month, individual account is fine otherwise you will have to choose Professional account. The professional plan starts at $39.99 per month subscription fee whereas individual plan only charges $0.99 per item sold.

After you choose seller account type you will have to provide business name, mobile phone, billing method, tax information and credit card information in case of professional account and you are done. They would do mobile verification and you are done creating your amazon seller account.

Where to Source Products for Reselling on Amazon?

Now that you have finished creating your account, you are good to start selling. But how and where to get products to sell. Well there are two ways either buy from amazon itself or import from any reliable local or online wholesale supplier. If you make a google search you could find a lot of “promising suppliers” for your amazon business needs. But we see from experience that most of them don’t keep to their promises and the business is ruined.

So today we introduce you to a leading chinese supplier ChinaBrands which is quite different from others in a variety of ways.

ChinaBrands has been a quality wholesale supplier with quality and qualified products in their warehouse for the lowest prices. They have no MOQ requirements so you can even buy 1 item at wholesale price. With their VIP membership which is usually $399 is being offered FREE for a limited time offers smart Amazon integration and you can import over 800 products to your amazon listings with a click.

You never have to face counterfeit claims or returns as they sell only genuine products and all products are duly inspected in strict quality control to make sure only the best products are sold. They have warehouses in USA, UK, Germany and over 30+ countries to make shipping fast. Its intelligent warehousing system makes your order fly within 24 hours.

With ChinaBrands you don't have to worry about over selling as they synchronize the stock and orders in real time. They have unlimited global dropshipping to more than 200 countries of massive quality product supply.

Amazon FBA Cheat Sheet: Buy Wholesale from China

48 China Sourcing Agents & Suppliers List to use for Amazon FBA or Shopify Store

The Reasons Why You Need A China Sourcing Agent

Basically, the primary function of a China sourcing agent is to source and identify fit suppliers based on the technical standards, and individual customer requirements. The process of determining a supplier is not easy. However, with the help of professional China wholesale sourcing suppliers, it can be much easier for a newbie to start purchasing.

 Competitive Price

Believe it or not, most China sourcing agents may help you get a much better price against your own. Why? Because they can gather quantities from different customers together to ask for cheaper price from the manufacturers and suppliers, and in lesser time thus saving the purchaser time and money.

 Quality Control

Most sourcing agent in China are professional in product sampling, factory audit and mass production inspection. They are well-educated how to source goods at qualified standard. Hence, reduce the risk of finding poor quality wholesale suppliers during purchasing.

 Wide Range of Products Availability

Different from Chinese wholesale factories who can only provide limited product range, with the help of a China sourcing agent, you will easily get access to the latest goods and understand the market trend since they are managing thousands of products in a whole.

 Shipping and Logistics Assist

The Chinese wholesale sourcing companies also cover the logistics procedures involved, supplier verification, warehousing and act as a link between the purchaser and the supplier in China.

Generally, they help the purchaser identify authentic fit suppliers based on customer needs thus informing the purchaser on the tariffs, taxes and any import/export changes involve.

To sum up, China sourcing agents help you a lot on supply chain management.

AliExpress Standard Shipping: A How To Guide for Amazon FBA Sellers

<https://www.chinabrands.com/dropshipping/article-aliexpress-standard-shipping-15985.html>

Since its establishment back in 2010, AliExpress has been offering international buyers an easier way to get products from China. AliExpress standard shipping is one of its delivery options.

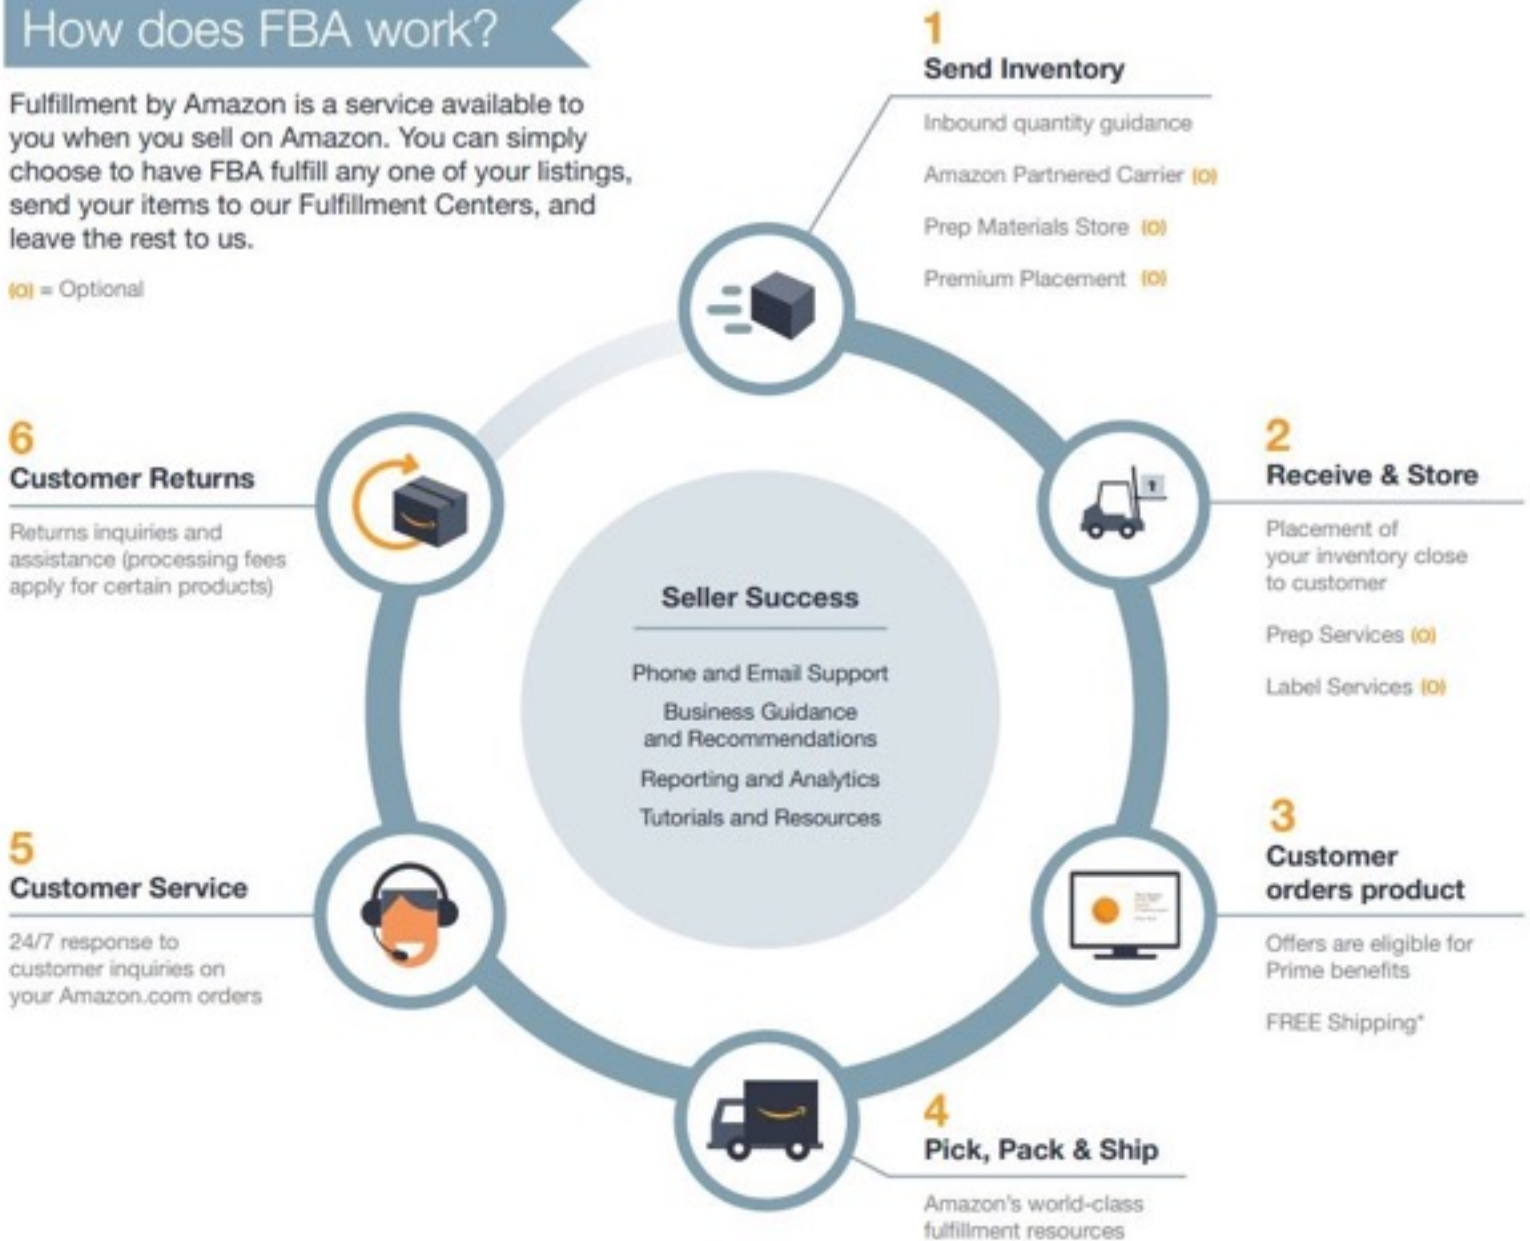

If you are yet to use AliExpress standard shipping, you may wonder what it really is. In this article, we will take a deeper look at AliExpress standard shipping.

How does FBA work?

Fulfillment by Amazon is a service available to you when you sell on Amazon. You can simply choose to have FBA fulfill any one of your listings, send your items to our Fulfillment Centers, and leave the rest to us.

(O) = Optional

How & What Is AliExpress?

AliExpress is an Internet wholesale service located in China and is exclusively owned by Alibaba.

It is made up of small businesses in China and elsewhere, including Singapore, which provides products to international online buyers. In addition, this is the most visited online commerce website in Russia and the 10th most popular website in Brazil.

Traffic by countries ⓘ

On desktop

	Russia	25.80%	▲22.24%
	United States	5.16%	▲14.23%
	Brazil	4.41%	▲27.78%
	Ukraine	4.39%	▲24.46%
	Spain	4.35%	▲42.01%

See 248 more countries

This helps small businesses sell products to customers around the world and can find almost anything that can be sold. It's better than auction sites because retailers are fair and use AliExpress as a sponsor to sell to consumers and other businesses.

The retailer on AliExpress may be a company or an individual. AliExpress is different from Amazon because it is just a good e-commerce system and does not sell products directly to customers.

This directly links Chinese companies to buyers. AliExpress's main target customers are mainly international customers in the US, Russia, Brazil and Spain. It typically uses AliExpress to increase its presence outside of Asia and online leaders like Ebay and Amazon. AliExpress definitely uses Internet affiliate marketing to find new consumers.

How to use PayPal with AliExpress

AliExpress Paypal: How To Use Paypal To Buy From Aliexpress

Are you looking for how to use PayPal to buy from AliExpress?

Well, you are in the right place. In this article, I am going to share with you the tips to buy from AliExpress using PayPal.

In the first part, I'll introduce a brief history of AliExpress PayPal.

In the second part, I'll share with you how to buy from AliExpress using PayPal and the list of AliExpress online shops with PayPal supported.

In the last part, you will see the PayPal alternatives on AliExpress, tips to protect yourself paying on AliExpress and the frequently asked questions about AliExpress PayPal issues.

So without further ado, let's get started...

A Brief History of AliExpress PayPal

On April 27, 2010, Alibaba, the world's biggest e-commerce platform officially announced the introduction of PayPal as a payment processor on their AliExpress platform. That was after successfully passed its testing phase (beta), which had begun six months earlier, on September 10, 2009.

Soon after the official launching of the payment processor in AliExpress, buyers and sellers began transacting using the processor, which they believed would go a long way in guaranteeing security during money transfer. That combined with the escrow services already in place; many people agreed that the future of the partnership was luminous.

However, the agreement did not last long as it had been anticipated. On August 2011, AliExpress made away with PayPal as a payment processor option. That is because the steep transaction charges by PayPal, (7%) were making many businesses unsustainable. Since then, there has been no news which points towards reconsidering the partnership. Meanwhile, other payment alternatives such as AliPay services were adopted.

Presently, there are limited U.S. and U.K based suppliers who still use AliExpress PayPal as a payment option. However, all customers are warned to be wary of unsolicited emails which contain information on how to shop using PayPal in Alibaba and AliExpress. Most of them are cons that are out there to defraud you of your hard earned cash.

How to Use PayPal to Buy From AliExpress

<https://www.chinabrands.com/dropshipping/article-buy-on-aliexpress-paypal-15295.html>

Even though the partnership between PayPal and AliExpress failed, it is still possible to transact using PayPal in the e-commerce platform.

However, it is noteworthy that very few suppliers can accept the payment option, and are mainly based in U.S. and U.K. Most suppliers from China often shy away from the payment option for fear of being defrauded, which is a legitimate concern.

Method 1

To make a purchase using AliExpress PayPal, the first thing you have to do is to select the option of shipping to USA or UK. Although you can also explore other countries in which shipping can be done using AliExpress PayPal.

The next task involves identifying stores selling the product you are interested in that accept money transfer using PayPal. Ordinarily, since you cannot use a filter to view all stores that use PayPal, you will have to manually scout for online shops that have added PayPal details in their profile.

Method 2

For online stores which do not accept PayPal as a payment option but are still interested in transacting with a customer can make use of private PayPal accounts. During purchase, the supplier should send an invoice to the customer's private PayPal account, containing a description of the products and the amount that should be paid for the same.

Worth noting is the fact that the buyer will have payment protection in case a problem arises while making a purchase. One mistake that should be avoided is making payments via gifts/family/friends since there is no buyer protection.

Method 3

International shoppers can make use of AliExpress agent to buy using PayPal. AliExpress agent is a growing agency in China that has won the trust of many shoppers globally because of their reliability. It functions to purchase on a customer's behalf using a PayPal account.

Once the purchases have been made, they send an invoice to the shopper, who can then use a card, or their personal PayPal accounts to pay for the goods and services.

List of AliExpress Online Shops That Support PayPal

Since there is no hot button on AliExpress to filter the shops with PayPal supported, which takes time to figure out the vendors. So I've done some research and collect a list of AliExpress online shops with Paypal available.

How to Buy on AliExpress

1. A buyer and seller agree to the terms of purchase.
2. Payment is made to AliPay.
3. Seller ships products to the buyer.
4. The buyer receives the products and carefully inspect to ensure it is what was ordered and at a satisfactory condition.
5. AliPay then pays the seller.

Despite, you will enjoy great buyer protection paying by AliPay on AliExpress.

 Privacy Protection

The most vital element of online shopping is ensuring the privacy and security of buyers' personal and financial details. That is because the information is sensitive and if it leaks, it can make the buyer prone to cyber-attacks.

However, general information such as name and shipping address can be shared with the sellers without putting them at risk of an attack.

 Payment Protection

AliExpress has an escrow payment system. In this method, once payments are made, they are not immediately released to the seller, until the buyer receives and confirms that the items purchased have been received and in good condition.

In case of any problem, the money will be withheld in the system until the disputes are resolved, and both the buyer and seller are in agreement.

 Delivery Protection

The system guarantees that all the goods ordered will be delivered to the customer. If that does not happen, the buyer may file a dispute and request for a refund.

It is also worth noting that during shipping, all the payments are withheld in the escrow system, and only the customer can initiate payment release once he/she ascertains that the products are in good condition.

 Genuine Product Guarantee

One advantage of purchasing goods using AliExpress platform is the guarantee that the products are authentic and in good condition. That is because all the sellers are aware of the fact that should they ship any counterfeit product, a customer can file a dispute and request for a refund.

 Refund Protection

There is a 100% refund guarantee when you purchase goods from AliExpress. All payments made by a customer are sent directly to the escrow system, and can only be released to the seller once the buyer confirms that all goods are in the correct state.

However, if this is not the case, the buyer can file for a complaint and request to be refunded in three simple steps:

1. Communicate with the seller, if the good delivered does not match the product description, has not arrived on the expected date or time, or if it is fake.
2. Open a dispute, if you are unsatisfied with the product or service offered by the seller.
3. Escalate the dispute into a claim. Should the seller's solution be unsatisfactory, you can then proceed to request for a refund.

Can I make payment to selective suppliers using PayPal? If so, what is the recommended procedure and should I approach them directly or via the e-commerce platform?

PayPal is not listed as one of the payment options on AliExpress. Nowadays it is only supported by limited AliExpress sellers.

Nonetheless, if you are still interested in transacting using PayPal, you can contact the seller directly and confirm whether they can accept transactions using PayPal.

Bear in mind that once you receive the invoice, you should avoid paying using gifts/family/friend option since you will not be protected by buyer protection policy.

Why doesn't AliExpress support PayPal?

Since 2011, PayPal was removed as a payment option because it had high transaction charges.

However, there is a new startup initiative dubbed PayPal Project which makes it possible for a few stores to accept payments made through PayPal.

Also, worth mentioning is the fact that at the moment, buyers can use PayPal when dealing with partial sellers.

Why then is it listed as one of the payment options on many online shops in AliExpress? Is it fraud?

No, it is not fraud. Some stores accept PayPal especially when shipping is to be done to selected countries such as U.S. or U.K.

Is it possible to use the search filter option to find sellers who accept payments from PayPal?

Sadly, there is no filter option at the moment which you can use to search for such sellers accepting PayPal as a method of money transfer. For this reason, to get them, you will have to do a manual search.

What are some alternatives payment methods apart from PayPal that can be used successfully on AliExpress?

There are several global payment processors which can be used such as VISA, QIWI, WebMoney, TEF, Western Union, MasterCard, and several others.

What are some problems encountered during payments in AliExpress?

Some common problems which customers encounter include:

1. Problems in feeding the card security code to the system; in most cases, the error occurs when due to incorrect entry of the three-digit card number.
2. Insufficient funds; occurs when the price of goods exceeds the amount of money in the account
3. Two-step verification failure; Caused by errors when keying in the information required for both two-step and three-step verification.
4. Verification failures; in such cases, a buyer is required to go through a manual verification procedure.

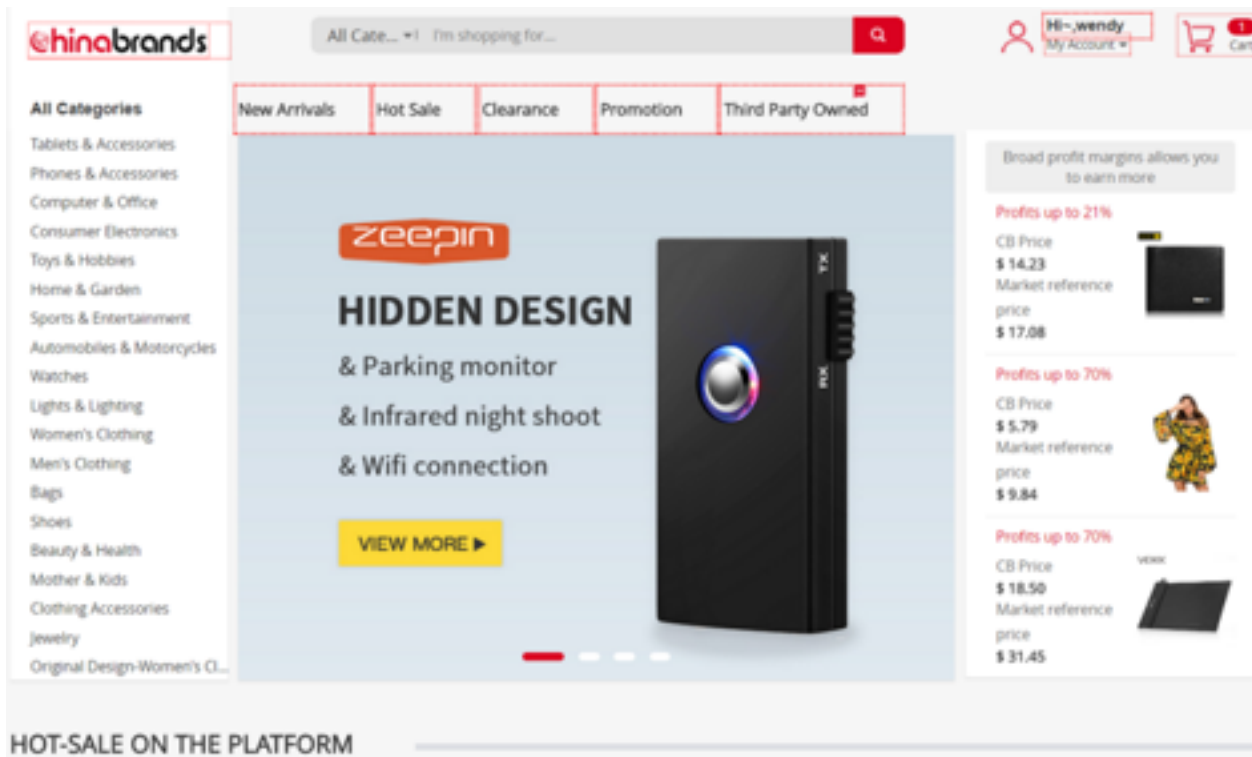

Other errors encountered can be due to network problems or due to system errors. In such cases, the customer is usually advised to contact AliExpress support who can then diagnose the problem and come up with amicable solutions for the same.

Should I Choose The Made In USA Wholesale DropShippers?

Despite being the best DropShipping companies in the USA, they all have both advantages and disadvantages. It's therefore very significant for the clients to consider several DropShipping companies depending on their needs. They include:

Pros of USA DropShippers

✓ Low Startup Costs

For one to start any business, one may require lots of capital. Especially to stock or for inventory more, so a warehouse to keep them. By use of wholesale dropshipping one can do away with the capital. Wholesale dropshippers can be used by investors and can have massive inventory that they may sell. In fact, one can start with nil stock and still make money.

✓ Low Cost of Inventory

The cost of stocks can be very high even if one has his or her warehouse. Thus this may lead to having reduced stock and probably out of stock so many times. Using wholesale dropshippers allow one to get rid of these costs, and one may build his own brand and clientele.

✓ Low Order Fulfillment Costs

Having wholesale DropShippers takes care of the organization, tracking, labelling, picking, and packing the stocks. The only job that one has is to get customer orders, and all other tasks are handled by DropShipping companies.

✓ Selling And Testing More Products

Due to its well and vast control systems' wholesale DropShippers it lets one keep posted all the inventories easily, quickly cheap. Without the constraints of a physical inventory and the costs associated with it. If the products are doing well, one can give it to the customer before it arrives at the warehouse. DropShipping allows one to test new products in the market and can only pay for whatever you sell.

Cons of DropShipping

✗ Reliance on Other People's Stock

Since one doesn't have his or her stocks, is a major setback for DropShipping. Sometime customers may order products that one doesn't have and will have to order from the manufacturer and may have a long lead time, and this can be seen when one may run out of stocks.

✗ Less Control Over Order Fulfillment and Lead Times

Due to its control mechanisms, one is not in control or manages the inventory and shipping the products. Should anything happen to the client, they may run away, and competitors may win them. Therefore if one is considering wholesale DropShippers business, it's necessary to consider best-ranking DropShippers, especially those in the USA.

X Less Profit

DropShipping doesn't allow bulk pricing, one most of the time pays more for each product compared to large quantities, thus fewer profits. In case one wants to make lots of profit by DropShipping, one has to sell several products.

X Poorer Customer Service

In case the wholesale DropShippers supplies or delivers wrong orders, products, damaged or late, most of the times damages customer's relationship. The clients become harsh on and sometimes even lose them if his needs are not met in time. If one doesn't have that personal touch with the client, retailers may damage their reputation. Thus it's important to make sure you are in terms with the wholesaler are one is the middle person. Losing customer is one other most expensive set back that one can have.

THE ESSENTIAL FBA CHEAT SHEET

FBA EMPIRE

THE 5 GOLDEN GUIDELINES

FOR ASSESSING A POTENTIAL PRODUCT TO SELL

#1 BSR of Top Ranked Products

Use the Top Level BSR to find a product that is selling well in your MARKET (remember when choosing a product, typically 5000 BSR and lower is what you're looking for)

#2 Check Reviews for Top Ranked Products

Check out your competitor's products and the reviews (especially the negative). If you can improve on the most common complaints, you'll beat your competition!

#3 Selling Price

Try to focus on products with a higher selling price (but right past those 50 items)

#4 Private Label Potential

Once you've got a product in mind, find a reliable manufacturer. Start with Alibaba and even by gold suppliers and trade assurance.

Sourcing from overseas can sometimes mean savings of as much as 70%.

#5 Profit Margin

Choose a product that offers a higher profit margin.

Other Things to Consider

Your product should be profitable enough for lightning deals. Not that EXOTIC (unless you get)

Reinvest your profits into buying more inventory so that you don't run out of products and lose out on sales.

NEVER WESTERN UNION ANYONE MONEY

Master the Amazon Sponsored Ads. They can make or break a product.

If your product page converts at less than 10%, you're doing something wrong.

FBA Empire members aim for 70% with many achieving well above.

Will you ship your items using sea freight or air freight?

Finding a way to get your FBA(s) will save you 30% or more per unit.

Getting reviews as fast as you can makes a big difference for your conversion rate. Keep in mind, product giveaways are not the answer for this anymore!

5 stars

Don't Overcomplicate It.

More Sales = Higher Rankings = More Sales

Amazon is a simple platform when it comes to establishing steady sales. The more people that buy your product, the higher your rankings, and, ultimately, the more you sell.

Want to launch more than one product? Rinse, wash, and repeat from the top.

What's Amazon FBA?

A fulfillment service offered by Amazon wherein they store and ship your goods for you.

Why Is Packaging Important?

Because Amazon will reject shipments that aren't correctly packaged and labelled.

Individual Products

Before they even get into their cartons and are palletised, goods have to be packaged individually.

- All individual SKU items must be contained in the same packaging; if you're selling a multi-set of a product (for example, book or DVD sets), each set must be packaged in one.
- Each shippable unit must have a visible barcode.
- If your goods are sharp, hazardous or damage prone, they need additional protective packaging.

- When labeling (barcodes) make sure:
 - You've placed the label on a flat surface.
 - All barcodes aside from your own are covered.
 - The labels are printed in high-enough quality that they won't smear or fade.

Cartons

Individual goods have to be packaged into cartons before cartons are palletised.

- Cartons on pallets should not exceed 30 kg.
- Individual cartons weighing between 15 kg and 30 kg must be marked "Heavy Package" (viewable from both the top and sides of each heavy-weight container).

Pallets

Cartons then need to be loaded onto pallets. This is for easier transportation.

- Each pallet must be labelled with the Vendor Name, To and From address, PO numbers, Number of cartons, and Pallet # of _____ pallets.
- All pallets must contain like items.
- All pallets must be stretch-wrapped in clear plastic.
- The pallets used four-way access pallets of 1,200 mm x 1,000 mm.
- Broken or damaged pallets are not acceptable.
- For single pallets, the pallet height must not exceed 1.8 m.
- The total weight of a pallet must not exceed 1,000 kg.
- Merchandise must not overhang the pallet edge by more than 25 mm.

Top 8 Best China Products Wholesale Suppliers

1. Chinabrands ChinaBrands.com

It is a Chinese wholesale & DropShip website for sellers and customers. The products sold on ChinaBrands come from the professional team of the website, they have the expertise of market trends. After verifying the suppliers' product quality, they stocked them in their own warehouses. When you wholesale clothing, electronics, shoes, etc., and other products, you are working with ChinaBrands team. At the same time, there is no MOQs (Minimum Order Quantity) limit.

Considering that the company is located in Shenzhen, which is at the centre of Chinese manufacturers, they have been able to offer the cost-effective and quality chinese products online. Their another website is gearbest.com which has already obtained a highly reputation in US and Europe.

Similarly, they manage delivery, warehouses and more for their members. As long as you register, you can download the products information at will and you can enjoy the wholesale price. Don't worry, the registered member is free. The surprising benefit is that one ChinaBrands account can link to multiple sale store accounts, that is to say, you can list the cheap chinese products to many platforms by using Chinabrands. For this reason, it is also a good order fulfillment solution for sellers.

5 Own powerful systems for upload listings

2. AliExpress AliExpress.com

It is a B2B wholesale trading platform. These China items for sale are provided by thousands of different Chinese wholesale suppliers, not AliExpress itself. Generally, They have higher MOQs (Minimum Order Quantities) than ChinaBrands. When you buy in bulk from china, you are work with the suppliers registered on AliExpress. If you wholesale different products from different suppliers, you will deal with multiple various suppliers. Be aware that different suppliers may offer the same item at different prices. You can always find the cheapest one, but maybe it is not the best for you.

3. Alibaba alibaba.com

Alibaba is the world's largest supplier directory, which is the B2B business model, specifically providing a transaction platform for manufacturers, trading companies or resellers. There is no fixed price here, the supplier will reply you the final price according to your orders' requirements and quantity you sent. There often is a fairly high minimum order quantity (MOQs) requirement. If you buy a few hundreds of each product, you can consider Alibaba, but similarly, you are working with different manufacturers. Before order from China, you'd better check out the supplier's information.

4. Global Sources GlobalSources.com

Global Sources is a good place to buy china products at wholesale, providing many Chinese manufacturers directory. They hosts a large number of exhibitions every year that you can visit manufacturers face to face. Similarly, they update products, suppliers and exhibitors directory every day. By years of development, They have very strong supplier listings in certain industries. It is similar to Alibaba model, it's yourself to find the supplier to purchase from. Registration for their basic services such as product and supplier search is free, there is no hidden cost.

5. Made in China Made-in-China.com

It is a global B2B e-commerce platform, providing China manufacturer directory and additional services for buyers. They aimed at providing reliable information about Chinese products and suppliers to global buyers. Its advantages are mainly concentrated in clothing, handicrafts, transportation, machinery and other industries. If you want to wholesale certain products, you will contact the supplier by email or online chatting. The sign-up is free, only the Premium Member services will be charged.

6. Lightinthebox LightintheBox.com

Unlike Aliexpress, Lightinthebox itself is a super big supplier of Chinese items. Lightinthebox main categories include wedding dresses and women's fashion, home, garden and electronics.

They can provide thousands of products at lower wholesale prices. It also has another website www.miniinthebox.com dedicated to all kinds of cool gadgets and electronics.

7. DealExtreme DX.com

DealExtreme.com also named as DX, is actually an online Chinese DropShipper and wholesaler, offering the most fascinating automated gadgets, including consumer digital goods, mobile phones, iPads, computer, auto parts, etc.

8. Dhgate DHgate.com

It is similar to AliExpress. They are both cheap China wholesalers with full categories of products. You worked with the seller registered on the website. If there is a problem and you are not satisfied with the seller's suggested solution, you can apply for DHgate Mediation. There is a coupon center providing much coupon codes all year around.

Final recommendation

Why should you consider buying china products at wholesale? I believe most of people think it is cheap and has massive choice. Indeed, all wholesalers above are from China with a lower cost, because they can integrate many resources. However, you still need be careful. It's better to check every company's legal and scale, and then compare their price and products quality.

Among these Chinese wholesale sites, ChinaBrands has a worthy feature that allows sellers to list products on multiple sale channels with one account. The global warehouses can ensure the delivery and after-sale.

How to buy wholesale from using ChinaBrands? Let's understand again. The manufacturers store inventory in ChinaBrand's warehouses, and ChinaBrands manage the inventory and ship to everywhere around the world.

When you have 1,000 orders one day, you can be grateful to work with ChinaBrands, the automatic order system.

Next is Inventory Automation plan which has three plans; Basic Plan with 1 integration, 50k SKU limit, stores and markets for $50/month; Plus Plan with 2 integrations, 250k SKU limit, all e-commerce platforms for $125/month and; VIP Plan with 5 integrations, 500k SKU limit and access to all platforms + API for $299/month.

The last is the Full Automation Plan with also three plans; Basic plan for $150/month, Plus Plan for $225/month and the VIP Plan for $499/month.

4. Dropshipdirect.com - general drop ship distributors membership: free integrate with Shopify

Looking for a general drop shipper? Your products are going to be shipped to your customers in 3-5 business days. Some of the featured products include; electronics, health and beauty products, apparel and many more. There are 12 markets supported by this drop shipper.

Dropshipdirect a general drop ship distributor's directory offers the following services; warehouse management, import/ export services and 3PL fulfillment.

Opening an account and operating it is free. To sell their products to all the markets on its platform, it has listed more than 100,000+ wholesale products which are sold by its merchants. Dropshipdirect is probably the platform with the highest number of online retailers/distributors with active accounts.

The system is very lean and simple. This is how Dropshipdirect works-

- i. Dropshipdirect gets the products and store in its warehouses located in different regions.
- ii. Once an order is placed through your store, they process and ship online.
- iii. They then pick and pack according to the nature of the goods.
- iv. Lastly, your customer's order is drop shipped to his/her destination.

Pros

- Free merchant account and no charges to place orders
- Weekly inventory updates
- No minimum dropship orders
- Huge selection of wholesale products to choose from

Cons

- Difficult to navigate the Dropshipdirect website
- Order fulfillment is limited to Europe, North America and Canada.

5. Dropshipper.com - General dropshipping platform membership: $29 integrate with Amazon, Ebay, Big Commerce

With only a fee $29.0/month, you gain access to over 2million items. This is among the dropshipping suppliers with the highest success rate of 99.5% due to its transparency.

This is an amazing dropshipping platform. You register even without a store or website and they give everything you need to set up an online business: a domain name, professional design, a complete e-commerce shop, supplier contact details and an automated product importer/ updater and pricer.

If you need products for your Website, Amazon store, eBay shop, Shopify store, Volusion shop or BigCommerce store, this is the right place.

Dropshipper.com is a one-stop shop that offers a large variety of products from different suppliers and uploads items selected immediately to your platform.

Other support services include;

- Back end shipping notification.
- Amazon data export.
- Complete control of your ordering and backend verification.
- Drop shipping your customers orders to their collection points.

Those joining the dropship program have to part with $49.0/month.

6. National Dropshippers.com - Wholesale & Dropship supplier

membership fee: $19.99

13 Things to Consider as an FBA (Fulfilled by Amazon) Seller

Firstly, you should research some tools to help you out because otherwise you'll just be playing a guessing game. By manually searching for products you aren't able to get lots of insights about an item like its demand, average monthly sales, comparison between other sellers' pricing, and so on. By investing into a tool you'll be able to gather more specific data and make a decision based on facts. Secondly, you need to consider an item's features when looking for profitable products.

What to have in mind when looking for profitable products

- 1. Products sale price between $10-$50 - This is considered to be an affordable price range. Customers are more willing to make a purchase based on impulse if the risk of losing money is not high.
- 2. Lightweight (not more than 2-3 lbs) - You want the products to be as light as possible so they are easy and cheap to ship. Low shipping costs will keep your profit margins high.
- 3. Products that are unbreakable and would last during shipping and use - You should be focusing on selling a product that is simple, durable and mainly unbreakable so you avoid any issues during shipping.
- 4. Cost of product's sale price should be 25% to 35% - If you can get a product made for under 25% – 35% of the sale price then that leaves you 75%-65% profit margin left. So the 75%-65% profit margin should be enough for you to cover the expanses of FBA, shipping and Amazon selling fees and yet still have a profitable income left for you.

5. Superior quality of the product - High quality of the product is something you want to keep in mind because it will help with your competition. The better quality, durability and efficiency of your product, the more chances you have at winning the competition.

6. Similar products have a 5,000 Best Seller Rank (BSR) or lower in main category - The BSR allows you to see which product is selling better within its category. For example, a product with a BSR of 15,000 is not going to sell as much as a product in the same category with a BSR of 1,500.

7. Ability to expand your brand into complimentary products - You should be going into a niche that gives you the opportunity to create multiple products that are related to each other. Afterwards, you will be able to sell these products under a single brand.

8. Products that can be searched and listed under multiple keywords and product categories - Not only will it help with your ranking, but it will also bring more chances of higher profit to your door. So, I would suggest keeping this in mind as well.

9. A few similar products that have less than 50 customer reviews on the first page - Products that have less than 50 reviews are usually easy to beat. That is why you should see at least 3 products with less than 50 reviews on the first page.

10. Evergreen products - Evergreen products are items that are not seasonal. The reason this is an important factor when choosing your products is because items that can be sold all year round will give you a higher income and a better chance of improving your ranking.

11. Top product's keywords have over 100,000 monthly searches on Amazon - If your top product keywords have over 100,000 monthly searches, it means you made the right choice and there is more than enough demand for you to be able to sell.

12. Products that don't have big brand names within Product Category/Niche or aren't being sold by great Amazon sellers - Competing with big brands is extremely difficult and it's a guaranteed fail. It's wisely to choose a product that allows you to grow easily and compete without having any disadvantages.

13. Products have the ability of providing repeated purchases - This is not a must, it's more of a tip. Instead of having people buy from you once, you could have the same people buying repeated times from you which is amazing for your profit. If you have all of these in mind when conducting your product research, you'll be able to find profitable products to start your Amazon business with. If you're thinking about selling wholesale products, you can find more details in the Amazon Profitable Wholesale Products Guide.

Tips To Spot Fake Drop Shipping Wholesalers & Companies

Unfortunately, you can meet some fake dropshipping wholesalers, which is, well... discouraging. However, there are simple ways through which you can spot a heinous drop shipper.

So, how do you spot fake DropShipping wholesalers?

1. Ask for a monthly fee

Well, unusual as it might seem, there are suppliers who request for a monthly fee. This should raise a red flag. Never should a supplier charge a vendor for doing business with them. The next time a wholesaler asks for an upfront fee, report him to the support team.

2. Sell to the public

A genuine wholesaler applies for a wholesale account, not a retail account. The next time you find a supplier selling products to the public at a wholesale price, avoid doing business with him/her. That is a retailer selling products at a bargain.

3. Don't want to sign a contract

Any wholesaler that does not agree to sign a DropShipping agreement is a fraud. How will you run a business without guidelines? Ensure your supplier is comfortable with your terms of service. That said, you can use existing templates to come up with a contract.

Before setting up with a DropShipper, research their company, read their reviews, and contact others who have used them.
